CIVIL WAR IN ALGERIA FEARED

France Facing Dilemma AT HOME AND ABROAD

Paris, July 3.
M. Georges Lecomte, Governor-General of Algeria, arrived here by aeroplane to-day and urged the Prime Minister, M. Leon Blum, and the Minister for the Interior, M. Salengro, to adopt urgent measures to prevent a civil war in North Africa.

The situation was brought to a head of Thursday when one faction attempted to assassinate the Mayor of Oran. The trouble is between the Arabs, Jews and Europeans, who are clashing frequently, the Arabs attempting to wrest power from the French colonial authorities by force in some instances.

A leading French correspondent has called from Algeria:

"Algeria is a powder keg. The smallest spark may set off an explosion."

Meanwhile, the strike situation in France continues serious, with the workers apparently determined to show their strength and to force M. Blum to grant their demands in their entirety. The employees of Molyneux and Lanvin, the leading dress-makers, have struck and are occupying the premises.

Workers have also struck and occupied the Pechelbron Oil Wells and the Kuhn Farm Machinery Company plant, both in Alsace.

Although last night the strikers evacuated the Opera Comique, the movement has spread to other Paris theatres, including the famous Alhambra Music Hall, and the stage hands of the Comedie Francaise have voted to strike within twenty-four hours.

Meanwhile agitators have succeeded in creating new and serious strikes in the northern industrial districts, and the unions have warned their members against unauthorised walk-outs, which are likely to create trouble.—United Press.

OFFICER'S COURAGE REWARDED

COMMANDED GUARDS AT ADDIS ABABA

PROMOTION GAZETTED

London, July 3.
The promotion of Major W. F. Charter of the Punjab Regiment, commander of the British Legation Guard at Addis Ababa, to the rank of Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel, is gazetted.

The promotion is in recognition of the admirable way in which he commanded his small guard, particularly when the city was in the hands of a mob of pillagers who repeatedly attacked the foreign legations.

It was largely through his efforts that several other legations were evacuated safely and brought inside the closely guarded British Legation compound, which the men of the Punjab Regiment defended.

The guards made frequent daring marches in small parties, for few could be spared from the Legation, to rescue beleaguered foreigners. One of these was to the American Legation, which had been besieged for three days when the British troops effected a rescue. They were constantly under fire in this work of succour, but they did not lose a man.—Reuter Special.

Thirteen Die In Riots

Mexico City, July 3.
Political disturbances have spread far and wide in Yucatan and thirteen are dead in riots and many wounded. Three brothers, fired on by police patrol at Tlaxima, killing two officers, the patrol returned their fire with a volley and all three brothers were slain.—United Press.

JAPAN'S THIRD PROTEST NOT YET RECEIVED

OFFICIAL TELLS OF EARLY STRATEGY SOUTH STILL HOPES FOR HUNAN'S SUPPORT

Canton, July 4.
No third protest has been delivered by Japan to the South-west authorities, declared General Chan Chai-teng, the Canton military leader, interviewed by the United Press to-day.

General Chan said that Mr. H. O. Tong's purpose in visiting Canton was not known to him, and he added that as far as he knew the Shanghai Customs Superintendent had not arrived in Canton. General Chan admitted that financial negotiations were going on with Nanking.

General Li Chung-jen, the Kwangsi military chief, asserted that General Ho Chien, commander of the Central Government's troops in Hunan, was a hundred per cent. in favour of the South-west. He was still in communication with General Ho Chien, he said.

A high Government official revealed that the original purpose of the South-west authorities was to overrun Hunan by means of a quick despatch of troops, with the assistance of General Ho Chien. But the hope that Hunan would join the South-west was spoiled by the unexpected southward march of the Central Government's armies.

From this same high source it was learned that the currency argument proceeding between Canton and Nanking at present is concerned with the South-west's stocks of silver. Canton wants to keep them, but Nanking says they ought to be in the hands of the Central authorities.—United Press.

Contemplating Protest

Canton, July 4.
Contrary to the earlier Tokyo report, Reuter learns on good authority that the Japanese Consul in Canton has not yet filed the third protest with regard to the anti-Japanese agitation in the South-west, but he is contemplating so doing.—Reuter.

Not Coming South

Shanghai, July 4.
Dr. Wang Chung-hui, former judge of the International Court at the Hague, is expected in Shanghai from Nanking to-day.

It is expected he will remain in Shanghai for three or four days and meet Mr. Tang Sanyu, a member of the South-west Political Council, who left for the north recently after refusing to participate in the administration of the South-west. It is expected they will discuss the South-west political situation.

The Chinese report that Dr. Wang was going to Canton on July 7 is denied.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

DELEGATES CANNOT SAIL

It has been learned on good authority that the 300 delegates, consisting of 270 men and 30 women, who are arriving from Canton by the 12.20 a.m. train to-day en route to Shanghai, are not to be allowed to sail on the Dollar liner, President Jefferson, on Sunday, as they planned.

It is stated that instructions have been received from Shanghai that the Nanking Government is not desirous of the delegation proceeding to North China. The delegates intended to urge the Nanking Government to declare war on Japan.

Attempts will be made here to persuade the delegates to return to Canton by the noon train.

REVOLVER BATTLES IN SPAIN

FASCISTS CLASH WITH SOCIALISTS BOMBINGS IN MADRID

Madrid, July 3.
Bomb outrages and revolver battles between Fascists and Socialists have disturbed the city during the past twenty-four hours.

A new building in the main street was blown up by four bombs at midday, while bombs exploded in a working-class suburb last night, causing considerable damage.

Two Fascists were murdered and a third seriously wounded in a cafe in the centre of the city this morning.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

DISEASE IN WAKE OF FLOOD

Dallas, Texas, July 3.
The menace of disease amongst the destitute in this flood-ravaged and famine-threatened area has brought frantic appeals to President Franklin D. Roosevelt for action and plans for swift succour by the Red Cross.

There are twenty-four dead in Gonzales and in the surrounding counties there are many more missing.

The waters are receding, but communications are down and many roads are impassable.

The village of Leesville was the worst hit. It is virtually demolished and the death toll was high there.

Crops have been destroyed over a wide area.

Meanwhile, residents of the lower Brazos and Colorado Rivers are preparing to flee from the on-rushing flood crest, should the need arise.—United Press.

PROCLAIMING KING'S CORONATION

With ancient splendour and ceremony the proclamation announcing the coronation of King Edward VIII on May 12, next year was read in London. The picture shows the King of Abyssinia reading the proclamation while the Lord Mayor of London is standing by. It is understood today that the Privy Council has nominated a special committee to make arrangements for the coronation.

BRITISH STARS SMASH RECORDS AT WIMBLEDON

Three Championships In Sight

PERRY LEADS IN FIGHT FOR HIGH HONOURS

Whatever slump English tennis stock suffered at Wimbledon last Tuesday when British girls were eliminated from the singles championship, it was completely recovered yesterday when Englishmen proceeded from triumph to triumph and to establish two new post-war records.

Fred Perry once again became undisputed world's singles champion, not only winning the title for the third successive year (a post-war record), but doing it by scores of 6-1, 6-1, 6-0, believed to be an all-time record.

Inspired by such a display, two English men's doubles combinations went on the court and sent back French and American couples to advance into the final. Thus for the first time since 1913 there will be an all-English final, while England will record her first success in this event since 1923.

Another fine achievement for the Homeland was the victory of Miss Kay Stammers and Miss Freda James in the semi-final of the women's doubles. But for Miss Helen Jacobs and Mrs. Sarah Fabyan there would have been an all-English final here. But the American couple overcame Miss Jean Ingram and Mrs. R. M. King of England in straight sets.

The magnificence of Perry's cyclonic victory was somewhat marred by the accident which befell Van Cramm, but there is no need to doubt that the Englishman would have won whether Van Cramm had been perfectly fit or not. He was in his most devastating form and played as spectacularly as ever.

G. P. Hughes and Tuckey firmly established their right to be named among the leading doubles partnerships in the world by repeating last year's Davis Cup success against William Allen and Van Ryn. But this time, instead of taking five sets they did it in four.

The real triumph of the day, however, was that of Charles E. Hare and F. H. D. Wilde, the young English pair, who entered the final for the first time since their association two or three years ago, beating none other than Borotra and Brugnon the conquerors of Crawford and Quist.

Descriptions of the matches and complete scores will be found on the sports pages.

DEFEND TITLE

Miss K. Stammers and Miss Freda James, holders of the women's doubles championship at Wimbledon, yesterday won through to the final. They will meet Mrs. Sarah Fabyan and Miss Helen Jacobs of America to-day.

LOAN TO ETHIOPIA DECLINED

LEAGUE DEAF TO NEGUS' PLEA

PLANS FOR REFORM

Geneva, July 3.

It is understood the Ethiopian resolution asking for a loan from the League of Nations has been eliminated at a long meeting of the Bureau of the Assembly, sitting as a private committee this evening to examine various resolutions submitted.

The other Ethiopian resolution, proclaiming that there should be no recognition of annexation by force of arms, is covered by a more general statement, which will be made to the League.

A draft resolution will be submitted to the Assembly at the close of its session, reaffirming the principles the Covenant recognises and holding this structure should be studied with a view to strengthening the League authority. The resolution will invite members to submit suggestions and it will ask the Co-Ordination Committee to recommend to the Governments the attitude they should take on sanctions.

The Mexican delegate announced he would abstain from voting, because he disapproved of the handling of the dispute.—Reuter.

FEAR OF WAR

Geneva, July 3.
It was revealed to-day that Nicaragua's reason for notifying resignation from the League of Nations is that the questions at present confronting the League are foreign to the permanent interests of South American countries.

Nicaragua fears that the remaining members of the League may draw her into other people's wars.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

REFORMING FILMS?

MOLLISONS MAY FLY

SELASSIE HOME

London, July 3.
The Daily Herald to-day says that James and Amy Mollison, the famous flying couple, have volunteered to fly the Emperor Haile Selassie to the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and then will proceed to South Africa.

They say they will take the Emperor to his people whenever he is ready to resume warfare against the Italian invaders.

Mollison said to the United Press to-day:

BUDGET DEFICIT CERTAIN

WARNING GIVEN BRITAIN

ARMAMENTS RESPONSIBLE

London, July 3.

Winding up the debate on the third reading of the Finance Bill, which passed the House of Commons without a division, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said in view of the acceleration of the defence programme, it was certain there would be a deficit on the present Budget.

The only question, said Mr. Chamberlain, was what size the deficit would be. There would shortly be additional supplementary estimates covering additional expenditure.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

AUSTRALIAN SURPLUS

Canberra, July 3.

A record Australian budget surplus of £3,562,000 for 1935-36 is announced by the Treasurer, Mr. R. G. Casey. This is the fifth consecutive surplus. The present surplus is mainly due to the increased customs excise receipts, totalling £3,588,000.—Reuter Special.

WHITE SOX WHIP REDS

New York, July 3.

There were no games scheduled in the National League to-day. All teams were either on the road or awaiting the coming of their adversaries for the July 4 contests.

In the American League Chicago defeated Cleveland six to five on the Reds' home ground, whacking out twelve hits, including a home run by Appling. The Reds replied with ten blows but could not score on a tying tally. The White Sox had three errors.

Detroit whipped St. Louis Browns handily, nine to five, hitting sixteen times. Gehring hit a homer. The Browns scored on only seven hits. They committed two of the game errors.

The Washington-Philadelphia game was cancelled owing to rain.—Reuter.

Peak Hotel To Close

ALL GUESTS MUST LEAVE BY AUG. 31

It was announced this morning by the Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels, Ltd., that the Peak Hotel will cease to operate at midnight on August 31. All guests at the hotel have been requested to arrange for their removal from the hotel not later than this date.

The future of the building has not yet been decided. It is possible that modern service flats may be erected on the site.

The cessation of activities at the Peak Hotel will mark the passing of one of Hongkong's landmarks after a long period of utility.

The Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels, Ltd., bought the hotel from Mr. Findlay-Smith in 1922.

Reaction on MONDAY!

FINE weather tempts most people to make the best possible use of their time out of doors.

Walking and other, perhaps more strenuous, forms of sport burst into full bloom without any preliminary stages of development.

That is the principal reason why you get a reaction on Monday morning and so many people grumble. Let us at the beginning of the week is not so joyful as it seems to be to-day. Something is definitely wrong. Why is there such a thing as work?

There is a scientific explanation for this bother. The only people who can afford to undertake strenuous physical exercise are those who are in perfect training for that form of strain.

Fresh and Fit

Out-of-doors sport comes easily to them. They do not feel that sense of fatigue on Monday morning. They are fresh and fit.

Here is the whole secret of the sad affair—fatigue. It is fatigue that causes you to take a darkened view of work when you return after a glorious week-end.

The unaccustomed use of muscular resources, poisonous by-products which have been lying dormant in the tissues, and which have resulted from ordinary

Blondes, Beware!

THE platinum blonde is dying a slow and sometimes uncomfortable death! Bleached hair may look glamorous, but after a time the bleach takes its toll by making the hair dry and brittle.

Film stars, it is true, use bleaches to pick up the high lights for the camera, but they counteract any dryness with hot oil shampoos.

Constance Cummings, whose blondness is not the result of peroxide, believes that the finest bleaching agent in the world is the sun. Working indoors tends to darken fair hair, so she gets out as much as possible, and goes hatless on sunny days.

Don't carry this sun treatment to the point of getting sunstroke—a scarf will protect the back of your neck, and it looks gay at the same time.

If you motor without a hat, give your hair an extra brushing in the evening, to rid the scalp of the dust that it is bound to pick up.

If You Overdo It To-day

wear and tear. In the healthy person these products are dealt with by the excretory organs—the kidneys and bowels. But one of the other main outlets for these products, namely, the skin, is often hardly used at all.

Perspiration is not only of use because it helps to keep the body temperature at its proper level; it is a very important vehicle for removing waste.

The breath, too, plays a part in this cleansing process. Deep breathing, such as results from exercise, is important for this reason, not merely because it is good for the lungs to be utilised to the full.

When accumulated by-products are released by physical exercise, a feeling of fatigue is produced.

The sun is responsible, too, for a feeling of tiredness after a fine week-end. Sunshine is a tonic, and if you have too much of any stimulant you naturally exhaust your strength.

So, what with an overdose of tonic and a too strenuous two days in the open, it is not surprising that we feel tired on Monday morning.

Tiredness is a plea for taking things more easily in the early stages, an appeal for training before you really get down to physical fitness. Sunshine should be used sparingly to begin with, until you have a skin that is protected and that can stand any amount of its rays.

Muscle Training
The gradual training of muscles is important. Those who are past middle age should be particularly careful. There is no reason why elderly people should not join youth in strenuous games, but if trouble is not to follow, then a period of training is absolutely necessary. Now, a minor point, but one that may make a great deal of difference to one's comfort. Shoes and boots must be broken in if the feet are not to suffer. The uppers should be soft and the soles stout for liking.

Warm castor oil is a good application for making the uppers soft. Socks and stockings should always be clean and neatly darned when necessary.

Clothes should suit the weather and not the time of year. There is a risk of heat exhaustion if you attempt a long walk in thick things. Light coloured and light weight garments are essential in hot sunny weather.

And don't forget that light meal in the middle of the day. Eat as much as you like when you get home. You will have time to digest it.

Saturday— to—Monday Menus

CATERING for a week-end is always somewhat of a problem for the housewife. Many things have to be thought out carefully—the prospect, for instance, of picnics if the sun shines and the unwelcome but possible chance of bad weather and stay-at-home meals. Here, then, are some recipes which will be popular:

Oufs sur le Plat. Break the eggs into shallow fireproof dishes, season, with salt and pepper, pour melted butter, which has been cooked till slightly brown, over each egg, and put in a quick oven till just set. Sprinkle with a few capers. Follow with fruit, biscuits, and cheese.

Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb is a most tasty dish, and the stuffing makes an excellent filling for sandwiches.

THE STUFFING

Mince ½ lb. of lean veal, ½ lb. of lean pork, a ½ lb. of gammon, and mix in a basin with one heaped tablespoonful of chopped onion, a few sprigs of parsley, thyme, marjoram, and two tablespoonfuls of fine brown bread-crumbs. Season highly with salt and pepper, and cook the whole in a butter or fat till slightly brown, binding with the yolks of two eggs.

Stuff the boned shoulder with the mixture, sew it up, and roast it, basting frequently. Serve cold with a lettuce and Watercress Salad, with a dressing consisting of four or five tablespoonfuls of cream mixed with one tablespoonful of lemon juice and a little sugar.

To-day's Recipe

Cinnamon Doughnuts

SIEVE 12 oz. of flour with ½ a teaspoonful of salt, rub in ¼ oz. of pure all-vegetable fat, add 2 oz. of caster sugar, and ¼ teaspoonful each of cream of tartar and bicarbonate of soda. Add a beaten egg and enough milk to make a soft dough. Roll out to ½ inch thick, and cut with a round cutter. Heat some pure all-vegetable fat until wisps of blue smoke rise from it, fry a few doughnuts at a time until golden brown, drain well and then toss in caster sugar mixed with an equal quantity of ground cinnamon.

END PERSPIRATION DAMAGE

Stop worrying about perspiration—its odour and damage to clothes. Use Odo-ro-do, regularly, and see what a difference it makes. Daily baths or temporary deodorants cannot give the complete freedom from perspiration that Odo-ro-do does. Odo-ro-do was invented by a doctor. It stops perspiration in the small area of the under-arm and this, authorities agree, is a healthful and sanitary practice.

ODO-RO-DO

Odo-ro-do is made in two strengths—"Regular" for use twice a week, and "Intant" for daily use, or for people with more sensitive skin.

Under the JOAN BERINGER helps You Achieve the Perfect Summer Tan.

SUN

WHEN on holiday a year or so ago in the Canary Islands I was struck by the way in which the well-born Spanish girls flocked out after sunset to take gentle exercise in squares and streets, while in the daytime they kept indoors.

"Why is it?" I asked. "Because, being naturally olive-skinned, they admire the pink and-white skin of the English girl and refuse to go out while the sun shines for fear of getting even darker."

Meanwhile, wherever the sun shone, English girls with skins well oiled were at great pains, literally, to tan those white skins to the olive shades of the South!

As the typical English skin does not tan naturally and painlessly, it must be helped with creams and oils used intelligently. And here are two important points.

1 Decide now, at the very beginning of the summer, whether you are going to acquire a real tan, or keep your own colour and merely put on an artificial tan.

2 If you decide to tan, GO SLOWLY is your motto.

And now, here's how to set about it. First, let's take it that you are going all out for an honest, healthy tan.

Get a cream which is a powder foundation but contains an ingredient which cuts out the short, burning rays of the sun while allowing the long, health-giving rays to penetrate. Put it on thickly, rub well in, and if your skin is sensitive or you are a redhead apply a second coat when the first is dry. Then powder. This will allow you to tan mildly and slowly.

When, after some days of this treatment, the skin is really injured to the sun, you can either be content and continue this treatment, or you can go on to the next stage, which is the use of a sun-tan oil. It is made in sun shades, and keeps the skin supple in spite of the drying effect of the sun.

Now for those who want to look tanned by day, especially while playing games, but prefer to go feminine in the evening.

Their method must be to use a cream which is sufficiently protective to prevent tanning, but which is made in such colours as bronze and rose Rachel.

This cream is good, too, for the women who are inclined to freckle, although for those who freckle really badly I won't say that it will do more than alleviate their problem. It is certainly the cream for the woman who simply cannot tan, but who, of course, admires nothing so much as the complexion which looks as though its owner spent her life cruising!

Also it is water-proof, so you can bathe with it on your face and come out as you went in.

If you want to keep your rose-leaf complexion, both in reality and in make-up, you should use this same cream, but choose it in natural shades.

Arms, backs and legs, about which we are really rather careless during the winter, come into evidence during the summer to an extent which calls for almost as meticulous treatment as the face. You can get for them a heavy film of coloured cream which is waterproof, and spreads smoothly and evenly.

You require, of course, different make-up, when tanned, from the winter. The problem is simplified by two shades which come in rouge, lipstick and nail varnish.

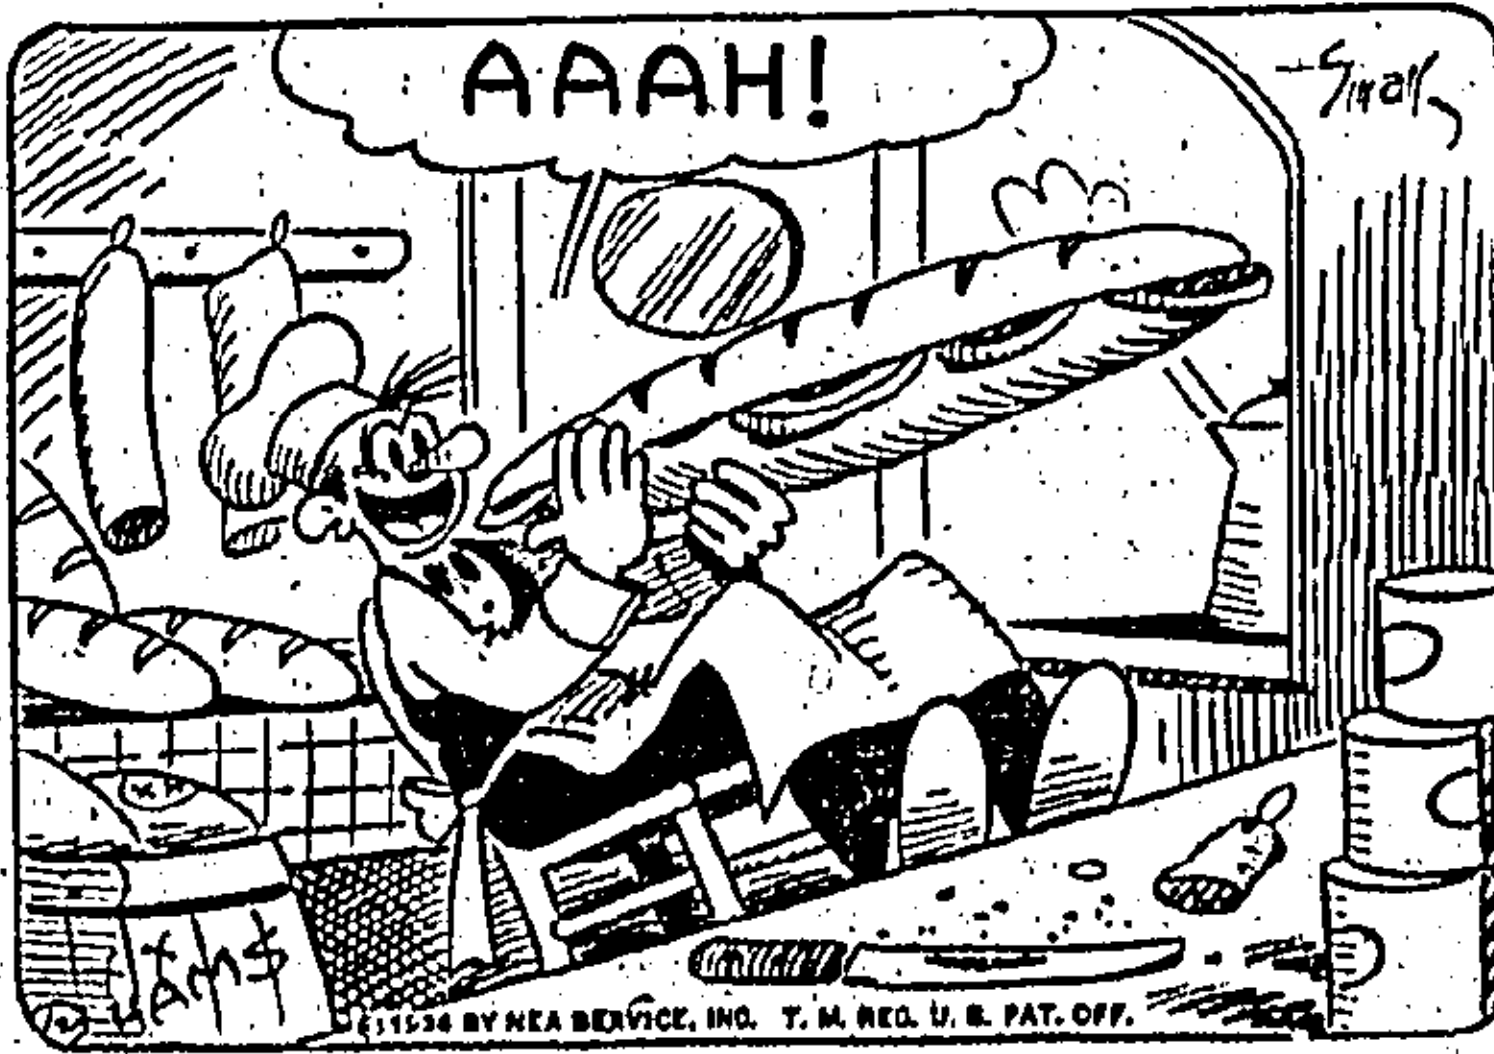

One is nasturtium for the golden-skinned woman, and the other is for the darker-skinned brunette and is of the flame persuasion.

WIDOW SUES KIRK ELDER FOR BREACH He (69) Says She (39) Was Domineering

SIXTY-NINE-YEAR-OLD John Milne, an elder of the kirk (the Scottish equivalent to a church sidesman), was sued for breach of promise by a widow of thirty-nine in Edinburgh last month.

The widow—Mrs. Elizabeth Keast—lives with her daughter in High-street, Montrose. She claims £1,000 from Mr. Milne, who is a retired farmer, living at Lossie Bank, Montrose, and has an interest in a motor business in Montrose.

Mrs. Keast alleges that through her membership of the Old Church, Montrose, she made the acquaintance of Mr.
Milne between 1929 and 1934.

About June 11, 1935, she says Mr. Milne asked her to marry him, and on June 14 Mrs. Keast accepted. A few days later she was given a diamond engagement ring.

They intended to be married last September, but the marriage was postponed.

In December it was agreed that the marriage should take place in the first week of February.

They parted at that time on affectionate terms. The following day they met at the public library, Montrose, and he told her that he did intend to marry her.

Mr. Milne, in evidence, admitted the proposal and the acceptance, but said they were conditional.

He asked Mrs. Keast to marry him provided that his daughter was willing to leave his house and could get another home. Mrs. Keast, he said, agreed to this condition, saying that on no account would she marry him if his daughter remained in the house.

She also told him that he must sell the house and start afresh in a new one. This he was unwilling to do.

"BUSINESS SUFFERED"

In view of her attitude, it became apparent that the condition could not be fulfilled.

During the second half of 1935 she adopted an increasingly overbearing attitude towards him.

She insisted on being taken motor runs at times when he had business engagements, and monopolized so much of his time that his business suffered in consequence.

Owing to her domineering character and readiness to take offence and interference with his business, it was evident to both of them by the end of 1935, he said, that it would be a mistake for them to marry.

The case was sent for trial.

THIS MAN HAS NO NAME

THERE is living in Paris today, a young man who is known in official circles as "Monsieur Nobody."

For years he has been fighting for a name. The solution to his mystery lies somewhere in Britain.

Now at the age of 22, a married man, "Monsieur Nobody" is making a desperate effort to discover someone who can establish his legal existence.

BORN IN HOTEL

He was born in the annexe of the Hotel de Paris, Leicester-square, London, on January 23, 1914. But this hotel no longer exists and no trace of the manager or staff has yet been found.

Shortly afterwards the French couple returned to their native Paris and being unfamiliar with English law, they forgot to register the birth before leaving the country.

When they reached Paris they again overlooked this legal formality.

A French advocate, M. F. Allemes, of 171, Strand, London, W.C., is now advising for anyone who can give information of the man's birth.

Public opinion is against the dismissal of a Prelate who, it is argued, committed no other offence than that of using his right as a French citizen to give evidence before a civil magistrate.

The Archbishop was deposed by the Pope for having deferred or caused to be deferred to a secular court an ecclesiastical dispute.

The case concerned the misappropriation of funds by an ecclesiast-ic.—Reuter.

COMPLETE OUTFIT

New York, July 1.

IF you don't believe this story,
it is filed in Los Angeles
Police Court as case No. 11,263
C. It was heard before Federal Judge George Cosgrave to-day.

"Your name," asked the court of the first defendant in a bootlegging case—

"Cones, sir," said defendant Marvin Cones.

"Your name?" asked the court of the second defendant.

"Panz, sir," was the answer,
"Tony Panz."

"Your name couldn't be any chance be Callar, or Cuff?" the third defendant was asked.

"No sir, no sir, it's—(Out with it," came the order)—It's Shurtz, judge; honest, judge, it's Harold Shurtz."

The judge took a drink of water before asking: "Are you gentlemen, Cones, Panz, and Shurtz, represented by counsel?"

Prosecuting attorney answered:
"Their attorney is not present,"
he said. "Their attorney is Mr.
Vest, Charles Vest, your honour."

The case was adjourned for a week so that Cones, Panz, and Shurtz could appear with Mr. Vest.

Lindbergh Ran Out Of Fuel!

Sevenoaks, June 21.

On the ninth anniversary of his solo flight across the Atlantic, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh ran out of gas to-day.

When the motor "conked," however, the only resultant inconvenience was a 150-yard walk to the nearest gas station.

The Colonel was driving his small American car on a morning spin through the Kentish countryside. He returned to his residence, Long Barn, to spend the rest of the day with Mrs.
Lindbergh and their son, Jon.

Archbishop May Be Excommunicated: France's Appeal

Rouen, June 21.

REPORTS are current here that the Pope is contemplating the ex-communication of Mgr. de la Villerabel, the deposed Archbishop of Rouen, on the grounds of his refusal to vacate the Archbishop's Palace.

It is understood that M. Charles-Roux, the French Ambassador at the Holy See, who has just returned to Rome, has been instructed to use every effort with the Papal authorities to obtain a modification of the sentence passed on Mgr.
Villerabel.

The effort will, it is believed, be based on these two arguments:

There are five grounds in canon law on which an archbishop can be deposed, and Mgr.
Villerabel's case does not come under any of these.

Public opinion is against the dismissal of a Prelate who, it is argued, committed no other
offence than that of using his right as a French citizen to give evidence before a civil magistrate.

The Archbishop was deposed by the Pope for having deferred or caused to be deferred to a secular
court an ecclesiastical dispute.

The case concerned the misappropriation of funds by an ecclesiast-
ic.—Reuter.

TWENTY QUESTIONS

Successful business men are often of this type: they are never happy except at the expense of some one else.

The second is the reaction of PEAR. He blames himself for his failures and feels guilty, humiliated, inferior, and depressed. "How could I have done a thing like that?" "I've let everybody down and some one ought to put all I got and that wasn't enough." He never forgives himself: he hates himself instead of the external world. Artists, religious leaders, social reformers, people of an intellectual type are often of this kind.

The third reaction is one of embarrassment and EVASION. This one tries to pass it off, glosses over it, skips out of it, covers it up. His reaction is an alibi: "It couldn't be helped." "Let bygones be bygones." "Got to make a mistake once in a while to please the boss." He tries to drink it off, jolly it off, makes light of it, and dismisses it out of his mind without taking any steps to prevent the situation recurring. Unfortunately it is the commonest reaction.

The rarest and healthiest reaction to failure is the purely objective one of apportioning the responsibility, shouldering one's share of it, but no more, making plans to meet the situation with reasonable hope of success when it next arises, and then forgetting the whole thing and continuing with one's play or one's work, whichever happens to be due.

Which reaction do you habitually use? It is difficult to be absolutely honest. The odds are that you have used each one at some time or another.

How can you make your reactions to failure habitually more objective? If you solve that problem alone, you've done more than a lot.

ARE you neurotic?

About one individual in five is neurotic; most artists and many brain-workers are: though neurotics are often unhappy because of their instability, it is that instability that creates the new ideas and the new "values" for each generation.

To be neurotic presupposes having a mind, and neurosis is the occupational risk of brain-workers. In these days, when it is more and more being cured, the stabilised neurotic provides one of the most superior types of individual.

Suffering from anxiety-neurosis (the commonest neurotic complaint) are: those who have constant anxious dreams or nightmares, blush frequently, are miserably shy, smoke or drink too much, or require any form of "dope" to call themselves neurotic, consider themselves to suffer from an "inferiority complex."

Suffering from obsessional neurosis (especially frequent in people of the intellectual type; some of the world's greatest men, notably the Dr. Johnson, had it) are: those who count window-panes, pavement flagstones, the number of letters in words, who touch lamp-posts and railings, who have frequent doubts whether they have turned out the gas or bolted the back-door, who write in agony and cold sweat while they are making up their minds whether the left sock should go on first or the right, who prefer other people to make their decisions for them. People who wash their hands many times in the day are symbolically trying to wash away a subconscious sense of guilt that haunts them. People who are worried to death about germs and infection—did you ever see a doctor who worried much about germs?—are similarly haunted by a sense of guilt and contamination by evil thoughts. They are certainly legitimate bread and butter for the psychiatrist who can do them good out of all proportion to his fees.

If you are neurotic—and you are in excellent company and need not be ashamed of it (but don't boast about it either), it will pay you to be psychologically vetted. You certainly need it even more than the physically handicapped person needs a periodic overhaul of his bodily functions.

WHAT are your prospects of happiness?

Speaking in very general terms, naturally, some of the things that favour happiness for the average man or woman are: an extroverted attitude (better still an ambivalent attitude), an interest in people rather than in things and in things rather than in ideas, an attitude of dominance rather than of submission, the ability to mix a job that utilises your major talents and hobbies with your minor ones, an objective reaction to failure and frustration.

Not so favourable are: an introverted attitude (unless it is a highly trained introversion that enables you to be aware of pleasant thoughts as well as the unpleasant), submissiveness, signs of neurosis, hobbies of a passive or intellectual nature, the "fear" and "evasion" reactions to failure and frustration, being a first or an only or a spoilt child, being excessively attached to one's mother, preferring the company of one sex while feeling more comfortable in the company of the other.

FORMULA for happiness.

A psychologist has summed it up in this way: KNOW YOURSELF, ACCEPT YOURSELF, BE YOURSELF.

EVEN CHIT SIGNING IS ILLEGAL

haphazardly across the crowded crossing caused a couple of cars to pull up dead without even a rebuke from my companion. Seeing my pained look he explained that there was no law against jay-walking in Hongkong streets.

NO CHITS

In the hotel, Simmonds grew thoughtful over a long, cool beer. In reply to my anxious enquiry he replied: "I am a little puzzled as to how to pay for these drinks. I know you have very little or... or... money on you" (A short pause enabled me to blush). "I could pay cash for this, but unless I am a resident or have a meal costing 30 cents or so, I cannot sign a chit."

"If I, as a non-resident of this hotel, signed a chit for the drinks we've just consumed, I'd be breaking the Liquors Consolidation Ordinance, 1911," he said virtuously.

I definitely reached for a pencil and recklessly proceeded further to break the law.

THE DOG

"A case in point," he said pointing to a dog which had just taken advantage of a loophole in our legislation.

"That little wretch can get away with that in the main thoroughfare while those coolies we just passed are liable to prosecution because they are sitting on the curb of the Cenotaph, Public Places Regulations, No. 2 of 1870. It is illegal to fly a kite, stroke a flower, or spit in our public gardens." Simmonds broke off to glare at an offending Chinese constable—"while a person not wearing anything on his feet may not occupy a seat on Blake Pier. Incidentally did you know that it costs you two cents to use any of the three rows of seats at the end of the pier?"

We were now at the bus start and Simmonds bade me a sorrowful farewell.

"I shall have to watch myself after that drink," he said. "It rather went to my head. Under Vehicle and Traffic Regulations No. 40 of 1912, Section 33, no passenger shall speak to a driver in charge of the vehicle. Section 39 prevents persons intoxicated from travelling in a public vehicle."

"A driver shall not carry a corpse in any public vehicle, Section 53," I contributed, "Don't pass out before you get home. See you to-night."

CURFEW

"Don't bother if you can't come before midnight as I shall be asleep. You will be liable to a fine not exceeding $250 if you wilfully and wantonly disturb me by ringing my door-bell. Section—9—of—Summary—Offences Ordinance No. 1 of 1845."

"In that case I don't feel like coming at all," I replied. "You told me we were playing poker and we are liable to the same penalty if we assemble together in the night-time without lawful excuse. Section 6 of the Same."

Simmonds jumped on the bus as it was moving off, used obscene language when he found that it was full, and remained standing on the step in contravention of all law and order.

I went home very gingerly and spent a worried day in bed calculating my chances of remaining in Hongkong without a stain on my character. G.

WORLD'S CHAMPION BEER DRINKER TELLS YOU—

How To Whet That Summer Thirst

Milwaukee, July 1.
The second annual beer drinking tournament will be held here July 28, and just to make sure there'll be some challengers to his championship, Floyd Verette, the Blushing Frenchman, has advanced some salty suggestions for those interested in becoming good guzzlers.

Chinese Movie Embarrasses U.S. Film Centre

Hollywood, June 20.
DOUGLAS MACLEAN'S imported Chinese movie may embarrass the local celestial cycle through failure of made-in-Hollywood
"Chinese" to resemble the real thing.

No less than seven "Chinese" pictures are shooting or in preparation in Hollywood, Chinese acting talent is at a premium, and many studios are forced to use made-up accidentals to fill in, but that is not the worst.

MacLean says that the American conception of the Chinese isn't Chinese at all.

"I am amazed to find there were no 'Chinese' in China when I first landed in Shanghai," said the former actor and producer. "No matter how genuine, they just didn't look like my ideas of what they should be."

"It was partly that novelty that caused me to buy out of China rights to 'Ten Luan' (The Song of China)." Characters, who are the foremost Chinese actors, do not look exactly Oriental, but neither do they look like what we Americans call "Chinese," and the story might belong to any land.

"On second thought, of course, it isn't strange that our conception of the Chinese should be mistaken. Does any slant 'Englishman,' 'German' or 'Russian' look like the real thing? No more than an 'American' on the English stage looks like a real American."

MacLean is busy editing "Song of China," and having Chinese sub-titles translated into English. The picture is silent, except for native musical accompaniment. It will be released shortly on a "Roadshow" basis.

Hollywood's Chinese pictures already before cameras are "The Good Earth" at M-G-M, "Lost Horizons" (which is really Tibetan) at Columbia, and "Chinese Gold" at Paramount.

Warner Brothers are shortly to begin "China Clipper," Douglas Fairbanks will make "Messer Marco Polo," another studio plans "Chinese Gordon," Tay Garnett is also preparing an Oriental opus, backgrounds for which are being filmed in the East.

While studio research departments may shoot the works, and make-up men sit up nights striving for realism, it is hardly probable that accidentals will be as successful in representing Chinese as China.—United Press.

TO ARCTIC BY AIR EXPLORATION TRIP BY TWO PILOTS

WITH the idea of establishing a new air service between Great Britain and Iceland, two intrepid young airmen will start out in August to explore the Arctic.

The venture is being undertaken by Denis Smith, the 19-year-old member of the Southend Flying Club, and Flying-Officer
Pat Carden, a brilliant R.A.F. navigator.

As a result of their exploration work it is hoped ultimately to open a new airport west of Reykjavik, capital of Iceland.

"Iceland is nothing like what the average person would imagine," declared Smith in an interview. "It is not cold, dark, and dreary, but, in fact, a very healthy country."

GREAT HEALTH RESORT

"I would prove a great health resort, particularly for people suffering from consumption and tuberculosis." Actually this has been proved in recent years by patients who have recovered from these diseases there, but what we shall do is survey the country with a view to a service during the summer months.

The original idea, though, concerns a service of passenger and freight machines for carrying men, stores, dogs, and sledges to the Arctic Islands from Iceland, Greenland, and Canada.

"A number of these islands are very rich in fur-bearing animals, and can only be reached during certain months of the year."

"By means of a regular air service the trappers will be able to remain on the islands for as long as may be necessary."

Stores of all kinds can be flown to them, and the men can be brought back to civilization for holidays.
Smith, whose left leg is in plaster, is recovering from a bad crash that he had some time ago.

Verette, 330 pounds of man mountain, has gone into serious training again to outclass Milwaukee's famous German drinkers. He won the title last year by vanquishing one half-gallon of ice-cold beer in 34 seconds.

For the first time, Verette disclosed the secrets of his success. A rigid diet and strict training rules are indispensable for a good beer drinker, he said.

His diet:
A pound of salt pork every two days.

Two pounds of salted herring every other day.

Three pony kegs of beer every 48 hours.

Three big, square meals a day.

His training rules: Stay home at night. (He's married).

Keep fat, but first of all get fat.

Take life easy.

"That's all there's to it," Verette said. "I might add that a bag of salty peanuts always sets well before drinking a lot of beer."

He is confident he will exceed his record this year.

"Privately, I have bettered it," he declared. "I'm in better shape this year and believe with a little stronger competition I'll cut my time down to half a minute."

Verette explained he had already drunk one barrel of beer—that's 32 gallons—in two days. He admits that most of the beer he drinks during training is furnished by a brewery without charge.

More than 300 entries, many of whom no doubt have their mind set on the free beer offered, are expected to compete. Entries are limited to persons over 21 who can quaff a half-gallon of beer in 40 seconds or better.

Red Tape Tangles Roamer Of The Seas

New York, June 21.
Officialdom and yards of red tape manage to extract most of the joy to be gained from a vagrabond tour of the seven seas.
William T. Murnan, a bronzed sailor who left the Pacific coast in 1934 for a round-the-world trip, admitted here to-day.

Sitting on the deck of his 53-foot home-made schooner, the "Seven Seas," Mr. Murnan watched the steaming little vessel rack at her East River mooring and emphasized that travel does have its disadvantages.

"One can't have the fun sailing around the way he used to," said the skipper of the wandering craft.
"Even in dinky little foreign ports you have to pay as high as $25 just for the right to drop an anchor."

EXPENSIVE TO STOP

"The United States is fully as bad as the rest. Why, I had to pay $7.50 for the privilege of staking my nose in Miami. Officials have everything tied up in red tape."

"They charge you anywhere from $5 to $20 to put into port these days.
It cost me $7 to tie up here, and I can live for two weeks at sea on that amount."

Despite his disgust with officials,
Mr. Murnan was keen to continue his plan for a 19-year trip over all parts of the earth. He has arranged to leave here in two weeks for Chile, by way of the Hudson River, Erie Canal and the Great Lakes.
From there he expects to proceed down the Mississippi River to New Orleans.

LONG CRUISE AHEAD

With Dan Zinn, his associate, Mr.
Murnan hopes to put out from New Orleans for Trinidad, leaving there to round the tip of South America, cross the Pacific, pass through the Suez Canal and sail to New York after emerging from the Mediterranean Sea. He had no idea how long the voyage would take.

Since he left Seattle, the skipper has made his way down the Pacific coast, calling at San Francisco, Los Angeles and several Mexican ports.
After visiting the Galapagos Islands, he sailed down the west coast of South America, was benched on the Colombian coast, but finally got through the Panama Canal to the Gulf of Mexico, where he passed last winter. Proceeding to Miami he met Mr. Zinn, and left for New York, arriving here Sunday.

HOME-BUILT CRAFT

Denying the marks of rough weather, the "Seven Seas" nevertheless appeared in good condition for further exploration. Mr. Murnan said, explaining that he started building her in 1928, but that she was not launched until 1933.

The vessel, with stay-sail rigging, has a small chart room, two small bunkrooms and a combination living-and dining-room. It was built for endurance, rather than speed and comfort, even the mast having been shortened far beyond normal length for a craft of its length.

The Primate:

WILL YOU FIGHT FOR LEAGUE?

His Blunt Question To Britons

CHRISTIAN VOICE IN ITALY
"SILENT ON POISON GAS"

In a message which the King sent to Convocation of Canterbury he said:

"I appreciate the assurance of your confidence in me. It will be my constant endeavour to follow in King George's footsteps."

The Archbishop of Canterbury (Dr. Lang), opening the session of the Upper House, made a striking reference to the international situation, "more restless, more confused, more pregnant with danger to the establishment of peace than at any time within our memory."

The confusion and the danger, he declared, were more notorious and more widely spread even than in the days before the Great War.

"Moreover," he said, "we have witnessed a great wrong committed by a European Power against an almost defenceless African people, which the united judgment and efforts of the League of Nations have been proved powerless to prevent."

"HUMILIATION"

"We are suffering that most bitter of all humiliations, the humiliation of impotence."

"It must fill us, as Christian men, with grievous disappointment that no Christian voice was heard in Italy to remonstrate against the use of barbarous poison-gas poured out not only on combatants, but on defenceless men, women and children, by which ultimately, the spirit of Abyssinia was broken and the victory of Italy was achieved."

"I cannot think that we have any reason to be ashamed of the part which our country has taken in these unhappy events."

"In the present dispute military sanctions were ruled out, but it has been shown that without them economic sanctions are insufficient."

"The question for the English people is whether they are really prepared for the automatic fulfilment of the Covenant of the League."

"Have they thought out what its obligations must involve? In the last resort, to put it bluntly, are they prepared to fight for the principles of the League?"

"Is it wise to retain obligations in their present form which some at least who contract them cannot be relied upon to fulfill?"

It seemed necessary, the Primate urged, to enlarge the membership and to reconstruct the obligations of the League if it was to fulfil its high purpose.

"We cannot willingly acquiesce in its being reduced to a mere position of a council of conciliation," he added. "There must be an organ of international judgment and there must be the means provided in the last resort to enforce that judgment."

The strained relations of France and Germany seemed to be the chief danger to peace, and no role could be more worthy of this country than that of mediator friendly to both France and Germany.

One of the first duties of a re-established League would be to resume the endeavour to bring about a general disarmament, and thus remove one of the most potent causes of mistrust and fear.

"We cannot abandon, or even whittle down, the ideal for which the League stands. We must, in loyalty to that ideal, seek to re-establish the League, however long and difficult the task may be."

"The spirit of self-centred rationalism, everywhere dominant, is still too strong. To summon and organise the moral forces must be the task of the Christian Church."

TITHE BILL CRITICS

Varying opinions on the Government's tithe proposals were expressed in the Lower House during the discussion of a resolution which, while welcoming the proposals to extinguish the rent charge, condemned proposals to inflict further heavy losses upon tithe owners.

Canon Brocklehurst said that they were not now in the hands of large landowners but in the hands of small occupier-owners. If four hundred or five hundred men in any area put their backs to the wall and said, "we will not pay" the tithe was lost.

The motion was carried by a large majority.

The berth at John Brown's, Clydebank, on which the Queen Mary was built, has been cleared ready for laying down another keelplate 1,000-ft. long. Its foundations have been tested for possible subsidence during the long period that great hull lay on it.

In the machine shops new lathes and turning machinery have been installed.

Every move has been made with one idea in mind—that if a successor to the Queen Mary is ordered she will have to be completed within two and a-half years.

You MUST take these Precautions...

NEGLECTED teeth and gums lead to a multitude of troubles. Beauty vanishes, health is affected. Proper care demands that you see your dentist periodically and let him remedy any trouble that has developed. Also brush your teeth regularly with Squibb Dental Cream.

This scientific dentifrice is antacid. It neutralizes the Germ Acids which cause decay. Such acids form in the Danger Zone, which is the space between teeth, the imperfections in the enamel and where teeth meet gums. They come from fermenting food particles beyond reach of the tooth brush.

Dentifrices that simply clean do not offer sufficient protection. Guard the Danger Zone with Squibb Dental Cream. It is safe, pleasant and economical.

THE FUTURE OF THE EMPIRE

In the present troublous state of the world the fact will not have passed unnoticed that considerable apprehension exists in the British Dominions concerning their future security. Much has been heard on the subject from Australia, and latterly it has been evident that South Africa and Canada are nursing fears and looking ahead with a measure of anxiety. Sir Abe Bailey, who recently returned to England from South Africa, struck a serious note about Britain's communications with the East, following Italy's rise as a Power in the Mediterranean.

In the course of years, the United States may not be able to export oil, owing to dwindling supplies, and then Britain would be largely dependent for oil for her Fleet and Air Force from the Middle East, conveyed through narrow seas that may be dominated by Italy. South Africans, according to Sir Abe, think the enemy to be watched is not Germany, but Italy, a nation drilled into a detestation of everything British. As to Canada's fears, voice was recently given them by a writer who foresees the day, not far distant, when covetous eyes may be turned towards that sparsely populated Dominion by congested populations in Europe and Asia. It is argued by this commentator that if an attack were made, and Britain were occupied with the protection of other regions, Canada would be forced to rely on the United States Navy and Army and the Monroe Doctrine. Therefore, he contends, the right policy for Britain is close co-operation with the United States. Many easy-going people will be disposed to dismiss these thoughts as the speculation of alarmists; they cannot conceive of a world in which the British Empire will not be secure in its own strength. These people, however, give little thought to the changes that have taken place in two generations which have completely altered the centre of gravity in world politics. The warnings and apprehensions to which we have alluded have latterly been voiced from so many quarters throughout the British Empire—by responsible statesmen, as well as competent observers—that they cannot be brushed aside as unworthy of serious notice. That is why there is need that Britain, if she err at all, shall err on the side of safety when it comes to making provision for the future security of the Empire as a whole. Never before was that need greater than it is to-day. Reassurance, happily, can be found in the determination of the British Government to make up lost leeway, in order that the future may be made secure. That policy, moreover, is one which has the support of the great majority of the British people, whether at Home or in the Empire overseas.

Unsatisfied need for recognition leads either to morbid self-blaming or to a permanent grouse and grudge against society. For happiness, there should be a proper balance between these four needs and their satisfaction.

HOW can you better balance your basic needs and instincts? Which are you considering least and how can you correct it? (In this respect, keep in mind that your hobbies are an excellent means of working off thwarted satisfactions. If you wanted to be an actor take up amateur theatricals or amateur playwriting, or even assiduous and systematic playgoing, even programme-collecting. If you wanted to be an author keep a diary, etc. Your holidays are another useful outlet.

KEY TO Twenty Questionsdesigned to give a guide to character

ON Wednesday we published on this page a series of Twenty Questions (with many subdivisions) specially designed by a psychiatrist so that your answers should give a psychological guide to character and thus provide a formula for happiness.

The mere answering of them truthfully should be of benefit as a sort of mental purge.

Here are some ways in which the answers may help to an understanding and balance of character.

THE most practical classification of human instincts and needs is into these four, arranged according to the strength of their appeal:

1. The desire for SECURITY for a job, a home, food and shelter.
2. The desire for emotional RESPONSE from others: love, friendship, marriage, social life, etc.
3. The desire for RECOGNITION: for success in one's job, prestige, power, good name, etc.
4. The desire for variety, change, NOVELTY, adventure.

If in your answers you preferred a rise of salary to a world cruise, the desire for security still dominates the rest of you and is unsatisfied and the desire for novelty cannot come into its own.

If you admit neurotic symptoms or an excessive need for novelty, consider whether your need for emotional response has been adequately satisfied.

Unsatisfied need for recognition leads either to morbid self-blaming or to a permanent grouse and grudge against society.

For happiness, there should be a proper balance between these four needs and their satisfaction.

Do something that you have no opportunity of doing for the rest of the year: learn to sail a boat, go abroad and learn a language; teach yourself carpentry or advanced crocheting; start your first short story, work in the hop-fields, etc.)

ARE you "extrovert," "introvert," or "ambovert"? (The psycho-analytical jargon is very useful, if only for brevity.)

The "extrovert" (accent on the first and last syllables) is interested in people, a good mixer, a hail-fellow-well-met, hates to be alone, prefers to take his holidays in the noisiest and liveliest places, when in trouble tends to put the blame on other people or glosses over it, goes to a party or to a pub when his spirits are low, is dominating in manner, has a sense of humour which gets its effects at the expense of other people, is conservative in his views, likes novelty, is happy in the company of his own sex, has the makings of a good salesman, a reporter, a publicist, a man, a preacher, a physician, a barrister, a foreman, etc.

The "introvert" is interested either in ideas or things (there are two types of introverts): he is mechanically-minded or else book-minded, may keep a diary, can not mind haggling over prices;

enjoy being alone, is a solitary soul, prefers to holiday in quiet places where the scenery is good and the population sparse, when depressed reads a book, goes for a hike, or drops into the movies, has a sense of humour which gets its effects at his own expense, tends to be radical in his views, is submissive, when in trouble blames himself, prefers but fears the company of the opposite sex, makes a good author, scientist, clerk, mechanic, etc.

The "ambovert" has a balanced amount of extrovert and introvert qualities: he makes the ideal editor or major executive.

Extrovert qualities help you to do things; introvert qualities help you to appreciate things: probably, a balance makes for happiness.

The extrovert should balance things by devoting at least a little of his time to reading and quiet reflection, and internal stock-taking. Introspection will never drive him crazy.

The introvert should adjust the balance by cultivating social hobbies and games; if he is mechanically minded he might devote a little of his time to the theory of his work; the idea-manipulating introvert should seek out a hobby that finds a use for his hands.

ARE you a leader or a follower? If you are a dominating person you will not mind taking the front seats in church or at a lecture when the others are occupied; you will not mind your loud remarks being overheard, in fact, you may like it; at a reception or a party you will seek out the most important person present; you will be firm with salesmen, and will mechanically-minded or else book-minded, may keep a diary, can not mind haggling over prices;

you will be good at organising games, etc.; you will do yourself justice in the presence of your superiors at business or work; you will enjoy addressing an audience, getting up at a discussion to raise a point, or heckling a speaker; you will check your restaurant bill before paying it... and so on.

The follower, the submissive person, will shrink these situations.

The degree of domination, or submissiveness, in your make-up will determine your capacity for leadership and the type of leadership that you might legitimately aspire to.

First, the type who leads by virtue of his post or position. In a position of leadership, he makes a capable leader: deprived of his authority, he loses that capacity. Generals, Cabinet Ministers, foremen, etc., may fall into this group.

Second is the aggressive, rebellious, militant type who hacks his way into power by sheer ability to dominate men.

Third is the leader who leads by virtue of a flair for understanding and directing the instinctive needs of men. This type is likely to be the best architect of man's future.

The second type needs personal dominance, first, last, and always; the first type needs it only to a moderate degree, and can dispense with it; the third type has least need of personal dominance provided he has force of personality, which is a different thing. He may even be shy and submissive in personal relationships.

Some submissive people are natural leaders by virtue of their suggestibility to the needs of the multitude. If their submissiveness is due to nervous anxieties, they may, if freed of that, resume their rightful place as natural leaders.

On the other hand, certain forms of aggressiveness are mere compensations for an underlying sense of inferiority; they are a form of bluff, and do not of themselves fit a man for leadership.

Any one can reasonably aspire to some degree of leadership within his own circle of influence and to the extent of his capacity for it.

But you must decide which of these three categories you naturally fall into, what scope and need for such leadership there is in your circle of influence, and how you should begin to develop your own capacity and use the opportunities that are at hand.

ARE you Conservative, Radical, or Objective? These terms are used in a completely non-political sense.

The natural conservative clings to what is old because it is old; the radical clings to what is new because it is new; the objective person is unprejudiced by training or outlook, and judges things by their practical values to himself and others; that is to say, entirely on their merits.

The conservative, roughly, holds that man is immortal, war inevitable, marriage as an institution is satisfactory and does not require improvement, man is not evolving into a higher being of the superman type, work is more important than leisure, etc.

The radical answers are opposite. The objective's answers will be mixed if a large enough number of such questions are put to him.

Which reaction is yours and what steps can you take to make your judgments more objective?

HOW do you face trouble? There are four ways of reacting to trouble: frustration, and disappointment.

The first is the reaction of HATE. The hater blames the external world for his failures. He reacts with anger and indignation: "He played me dirty," "I'll get even with him if I have to swing for it." He never forgives and he awaits his opportunity for revenge.

BULLS AND INNERS

From the Office Butts

At Wimbledon, Perry slammed a ball at a Press photographer. One way of making a racket.

We notice an announcement "25% Off Bathing Costumes." Most of them seem to be lacking about 39%.

A small section of the old City Hall is to be left standing. On its own square feet, we presume.

MacWhirter confesses that he uses American phrases. For a that, we should never mistake him for a Pilgrim Father.

Now that a Chinese orchestra, replete with saxophone, has established itself opposite our office and set itself up in competition with street hawkers' cries, we may soon feel sufficiently inspired to compose a tone-poem entitled "Wailing Wallahs of Wyndham Street."

If dogs are definitely banned from the beaches, won't it be rather hard lines on some of the Colony's bright young pups?

Dorothy Round's tennis defeat was partially attributed to the fact that she broke a shoulder-strap. No doubt she'd prefer a set-back to a bare back.

The bathing beaches are now receiving the Government's attention.

you will be good at organising games, etc.; you will do yourself justice in the presence of your superiors at business or work; you will enjoy addressing an audience, getting up at a discussion to raise a point, or heckling a speaker; you will check your restaurant bill before paying it... and so on.

Quins are paid £ 1,000 a minute

The Quins and Jean Hersholt in
The Country Doctor
King's, Alhambra

DARRYL F. Zanuck, Fox-Twentieth Century No. 1 man, boasts that half his success has been due to dramatising news-stories.

Here he has dramatised the most human news-story of 1934, the birth of the world's ballyhoo babies.

He has also made the Quins, on their second birthday, the world's highest-paid young women.

Zanuck paid £10,000 into their trust fund to make this film. The film runs 95 minutes. The Quins are born, off-stage, when it has been running one hour. Then come newsreel shots at different ages.

Then for ten glorious minutes the Quins themselves act every one else off the screen. In screen time Yvonne, Cecile, Marie, Annette and Emilie earned just £200 each a minute.

If you have any spark of paternal or maternal feeling in you, you cannot help liking this film. It is sugar and spice and all things nice.

The Quins are born to sheer slapstick. Every twin joke is multiplied by two-and-a-half and gets an honest laugh.

One. Two. Three. Four. Slim Summerville, the sheriff, cannot take it. "Hey, you gotta stop this, Doc." And John Qualen, harassed father already in "Whipsaw," asks, "Think we're kinda near the end of them?" in a dazed sort of way.

Five, and the settlement gets a new hospital and the doctor an O.B.E., and everything ends happily in a five-fold riot of baby-action.

It is hard on Jean Hersholt, after thirty years' character acting, to be acted off the screen in his first lead by five leading ladies, but when Marie chews a toe, Annette plays a trumpet, Yvonne does her level best to eat a comb, and Cecile and Emilie do a knock-about chair-upsetting act, and all five make fish-faces and crawl and bounce over him, what could a mere man do?

TRY THESE RECORDS

BIG girl of the Covent Garden season in London has two new discs on the market, both worth the attention of every one who likes good singing.

Mrs. Kirsten Flagstad does Elsa's Dream from "Lohengrin" and "Oh! Hail of Song" (for- tunately, she sings it as "Dich, tummalte, du singst es an" and "Teure Halle") on one record; and Elizabeth's Prayer, also from "Lohengrin," spread across two sides of another record, and very beautifully she spreads it. (His Master's Voice, DB2747-2748).

Another big voice does a couple of hardy-gurdygah tunes in a big way, Beniamino Gigli being reinforced (not that his tenor needs any more power to its larynx) by the Scala Orchestra.

And yet another big voice, that of Paul Robeson, gives you "Jes Mah Song" and the mournfully appealing "Shenandoah" (His Master's Voice DB438).

Quin Chat

It happened like this. Film unit (20) went to Callander—then Dr. Dafoe took charge. No filming before all babies were awake. Thirty minutes to erect apparatus. Thirty minutes filming a day. Anti-glare lights. Masks. Throat-sprays. Company rehearsed lines overnight, word perfect, with cushions labelled after Quins. Camera crew dressed up like surgeons.

Then the Quins took charge. Crawled out of camera range, chuckling. Smearing Hersholt's make-up with podgy fingers. Cast forgot their lines. So they just photographed them anyway.

Week over—Dr. Dafoe all smiles. Quins had gained two pounds between them. Loss of weight of film unit was unspecified.

Shanghai Newspaper Wrote Crimean Classic for Screen By "FIRST NIGHT"

HONGKONG will soon see Hollywood version of the immortal Charge of the Light Brigade in film of same name.

Ever since 1854 there's been considerable mystery regarding this military saga.

Some historians say it was an awful blunder. Others, that it was a great piece of strategy.

But everyone admits that the 600-odd men who took part in the charge were heroes. Tennyson made them immortal in his poem.

About five years ago a Shanghai newspaperman decided to show that the historians were wrong.

A woman was the cause of it all, he wrote.

At the mere mention of romance in such a juicy plot as the charge across the "Valley of Death," Hollywood producers fell over themselves to buy the screen rights of the Shanghai writer's version.

The author is Michel Jacoby, well-known to many a screed in the Far East. Mr. Jacoby is 32. He isn't English, but English, and English history has been his weakness.

After graduating from Columbia University, Jake became a reporter on the New York World. He was sent out to Shanghai a decade ago to cover one of China's periodic civil wars, and remained there for six years.

While waiting for Chiang Kai-shek to seize Shanghai, Jake decided to write a story about Balacava. He read every book written on the Crimean War. He studied maps and British military records.

He wasn't the first person who had thought of making a picture of the Charge. The trouble was that no one else had ever figured a plot of hang the charge on.

All newspapermen are romantic, otherwise they wouldn't stick to their jobs. So Jake decided the only thing to do was to use the Charge as the climax of a film—to write a story leading up to where Tennyson begins and end the picture with the ride across the Valley of Death.

So, when you see the film at the Queen's shortly, you'll be surprised to know that the famous Charge was neither a blunder nor strategy. The "noble 600" rode through the valley of death because their leader loved his brother's sweetheart, for one thing, and because they wanted to avenge a massacre in India, for another. It hasn't been stated yet how Warner Bros. are going to get over Hongkong censorship difficulties, about the latter hypothesis.

Jacoby says he found some interesting things while digging up material for his story.

For one thing, he says, Tennyson was inaccurate in his poem. There were more than 600 men. And Tennyson's description of the ride was "all wet" from a military point of view. Cavalrymen just don't charge as Tennyson had them charging, Mr. Jacoby says.

And he says that the hardest thing about his story, which is laid for the most part in India, was working up to the Crimean War. He knew he had to bring in the war so that it wouldn't seem to be dragged in by the heels. This he did by a very snail-paced piece of business. You learn that Crimean War is brewing when the cavalry regiment, which has been doing border duty near the Khyber

LETTERS BALLYHOO FOR BRITISH MUST BE SUPPORTED BY BETTER PICTURES

—SAYS THIS READER

YOU announced that percentage of British films screened each month at a local cinema would be regulated by the support accorded them by the public.

If that's the case and if nothing better is offered than the type of British film we have recently been offered, I imagine it won't be long before they are cut out altogether.

Really, can't something be done about this matter? I know it is said that British films will never be popular in Hongkong, because they do not appeal to the Chinese, who make up the great majority of local cinema patrons. But I contend that British films—that is, modern products, of the best type, from British studios—have never had a chance here. I will concede that "Nell Gwynn," shown this week, was excellent, but even that film is over two years old.

I am not concerned with the system under which we seem to get nothing but second-rate, and, oft-times, very old, British pictures, but I do say that the showing of such films, so far from helping in cultivating a taste for the best that Britain's studios can produce, is a distinct disservice to the British film industry.

Last week, we had two British films which, by no stretch of the imagination, could be considered typical of that industry's present-day products. What is worse is that both these pictures were preceded by "shorts" which were simply not worth seeing. In one of these programmes, there were actually two "Organlogues"—those banal, sentimental, mushy productions in which the public is supposed to join in singing but never does. Personally, I should be glad if "The Voice of the Organ" were stricken with laryngitis, never to be heard again.

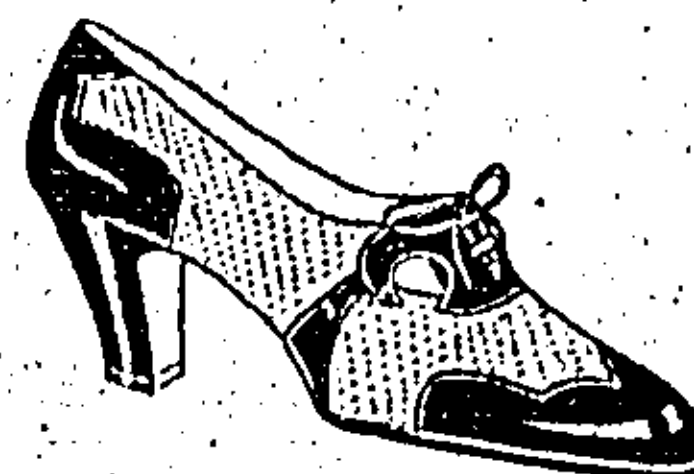

Then, preceding another film, was a British newsreel depicting event prior to the late King's Silver Jubilee!

If that was not enough, there was a short entitled "Song Writers of the 90's" which I had previously seen in Hongkong last year. I ask you—is it fair to British films to present them, even poor as the type we see in Hongkong are, alongside such rubbish?

Why, oh why, can't we get good British films and up-to-date British newsreels?

Renee Florigny Returns To Hongkong

His Excellency the Governor and the French Consul, M. J. Leurquin, will patronise the pianoforte recital at Helena May on Tuesday by Madame Renee Florigny, distinguished French pianist, who is revisiting the Colony.

Madame Florigny received her musical training at the famous Paris Conservatoire, taking her first lesson on the piano at the early age of seven, when she studied under the celebrated maestro Rouvi Pugno. He recognised her genius at once and his prophecies concerning her ultimate success have been well borne out. She has often been called "the female Paderewski."

Beethoven, Mozart and Chopin are her favourite composers, and those in Hongkong who heard her before declare that interpretation of these masters is splendid.

Madame Florigny's first visit to Hongkong was in January, 1935. Since then she has been to Manila, Indo-China, Saigon, Cambodia, Bali, Japan, South Korea, Dairen, Mukden, Harbin, Tientsin, Peiping, Nanking and Shanghai. Lately, she visited Canton and Macao.

Among her most priceless souvenirs are two decorations which she has received since her last visit to Hongkong. One was given to Mme. Florigny by the Emperor of Annam after she had given a concert in his Palace. The other was presented by the King of Cambodia.

CURRENT AFFAIRS TEST

How To Do It

FIVE possible answers are given for each question. You select what you think is the correct answer, and put its number on the line at the right of the number of the question on the answer sheet.

Example: O. The Prime Minister of Great Britain is (1) MacDonald, (2) Chamberlain, (3) Hailsham, (4) Baldwin, (5) Lloyd George.

Baldwin is the correct answer. The number of this question is 0; the number 4 (meaning Baldwin) has been placed at the right of 0 on the answer sheet.

At the end of the Test check your replies with the answers given on this page. AND DON'T PEEP.

In our opinion, 20 is a good score, 25 very good indeed. There are no prizes.

Is Your Name FRED A?

A MOODY and capricious nature is associated with this name, at times restless and careless with no thought of to-morrow, at others, with fits of despondency and remorse, and a fear of the future. Impulsive in action, taking risks and daring much. A clever brain and a ready wit, persuasive and with some personal magnetism. Fond of gaiety and bright lights, and anything appealing to the senses and emotions.

The fortunate day is Saturday. The harmonious colours, golden brown and dark green. The lucky gem, the turquoise; mascots, mummy, elephant, and beetle. Perfumes, pansy or lilac. The lucky dates of any month are 8, 17, and 26.

The eventful years of age giving fortunate events are 14, 20, 24, 30, 34, 40, 45. Unfortunate ages, 12, 17, 22, 27, 32, 37, 42, 47. Changes occur at 19, 29, 34, 49. Eventful times in heart affairs 24, 29, and 34.

How do you LAUGH?

HAVE you ever really listened to your own laugh? Probably not, but it is worth studying. An attractive laugh is rare.

Many women pitch their laughter far too high. It should be on the same level as, or little higher than, the speaking voice, and should fall gradually in tone. It becomes irritating if it ends on a high note. Other laughs to avoid are the nasal one, the explosive one, the monotonous "ha-ha," and the too-frequent "fit of the giggles." Words and laughter must be separated—however funny the story—otherwise both are lost on the listeners!

Notice the Stars.

Any one with a fairly good "ear" can follow the example of these actresses who learn a clear, pleasant stage laugh by practising it to a musical scale—first slowly, then rapidly, finally without the music. Do not fear that these attentions will develop that worst laugh of all, the affected one.

Teach them Young

For children, however, the cure is more palatable if disguised. Introduce into the nursery songs or rhymes with laughs in them, such as: "Ha, ha, he, he, he, little brown jug I do love thee." Invent a play in which turns are taken for the part of "the child who couldn't stop laughing" have a repeat performance within a week, and give prizes for the best efforts.

Don't Giggle

Much laughter is nothing more than nervousness. You, too, must have met the girl secretary who titters when her boss says "Good morning." The ingratiating salesman who winds up every sentence with "He-he," the woman who giggles at a touching passage in a serious play—not from callousness, but because emotion felt in public makes her feel embarrassed.

They warn us not to laugh without mentally making sure first that we really want to. To possess charm, laughter must have a reason and a meaning, too.

This Curry tastes like a real Indian one

HERE is a way of preparing and serving a curry which looks and tastes like those you get in India. Cut half a coconut in small pieces and put it through a mincer. If a fresh coconut is not obtainable use two tablespoonsful of desiccated coconut.

Add to the coconut a blade of garlic chopped fine, one tablespoonful of curry powder and one level tablespoon of cayenne pepper. If you like a very hot curry add a little more. Mix all to a paste with water. Add two to three cupsful of water according to the amount required. Put in a casserole with a sliced tomato on top. Place in a slow oven and cook for an hour or more. It will not spoil by long cooking, and if it appears to be drying up more water can be added. Just before serving add a teaspoonful of vinegar.

Serve the rice in a separate dish. A dish of split peas cooked and mashed goes well with it.

P U Z Z L E

By shading in some of the numbered squares in this puzzle you will obtain a silhouette of a popular comedian. The solution is given on Page 2 of this supplement.

Girls' and Boys' Corner

If any fisherman had as many lines on his rod as this little boy has, what a catch he could have! But you will find in tracing the lines in the picture four of them are unbroken. The others lead out of the picture.

Which are the good lines, and what is on the end of each, is for competitors to puzzle out.

To enter for a prize, discover which four fish or other articles the boy has caught, and write their names in a neat list on a postcard. Ink or pencil may be used, and your name, age and address must be added. There will again be two prizes—one for Seniors and another for Juniors.

One prize will be given for the correct and most neatly written answers by children from 10 to 14 years, and another for children under 10. Entries must arrive by next Wednesday, at 4 p.m. and should be addressed to Uncle Eddie, c/o "Hongkong Telegraph."

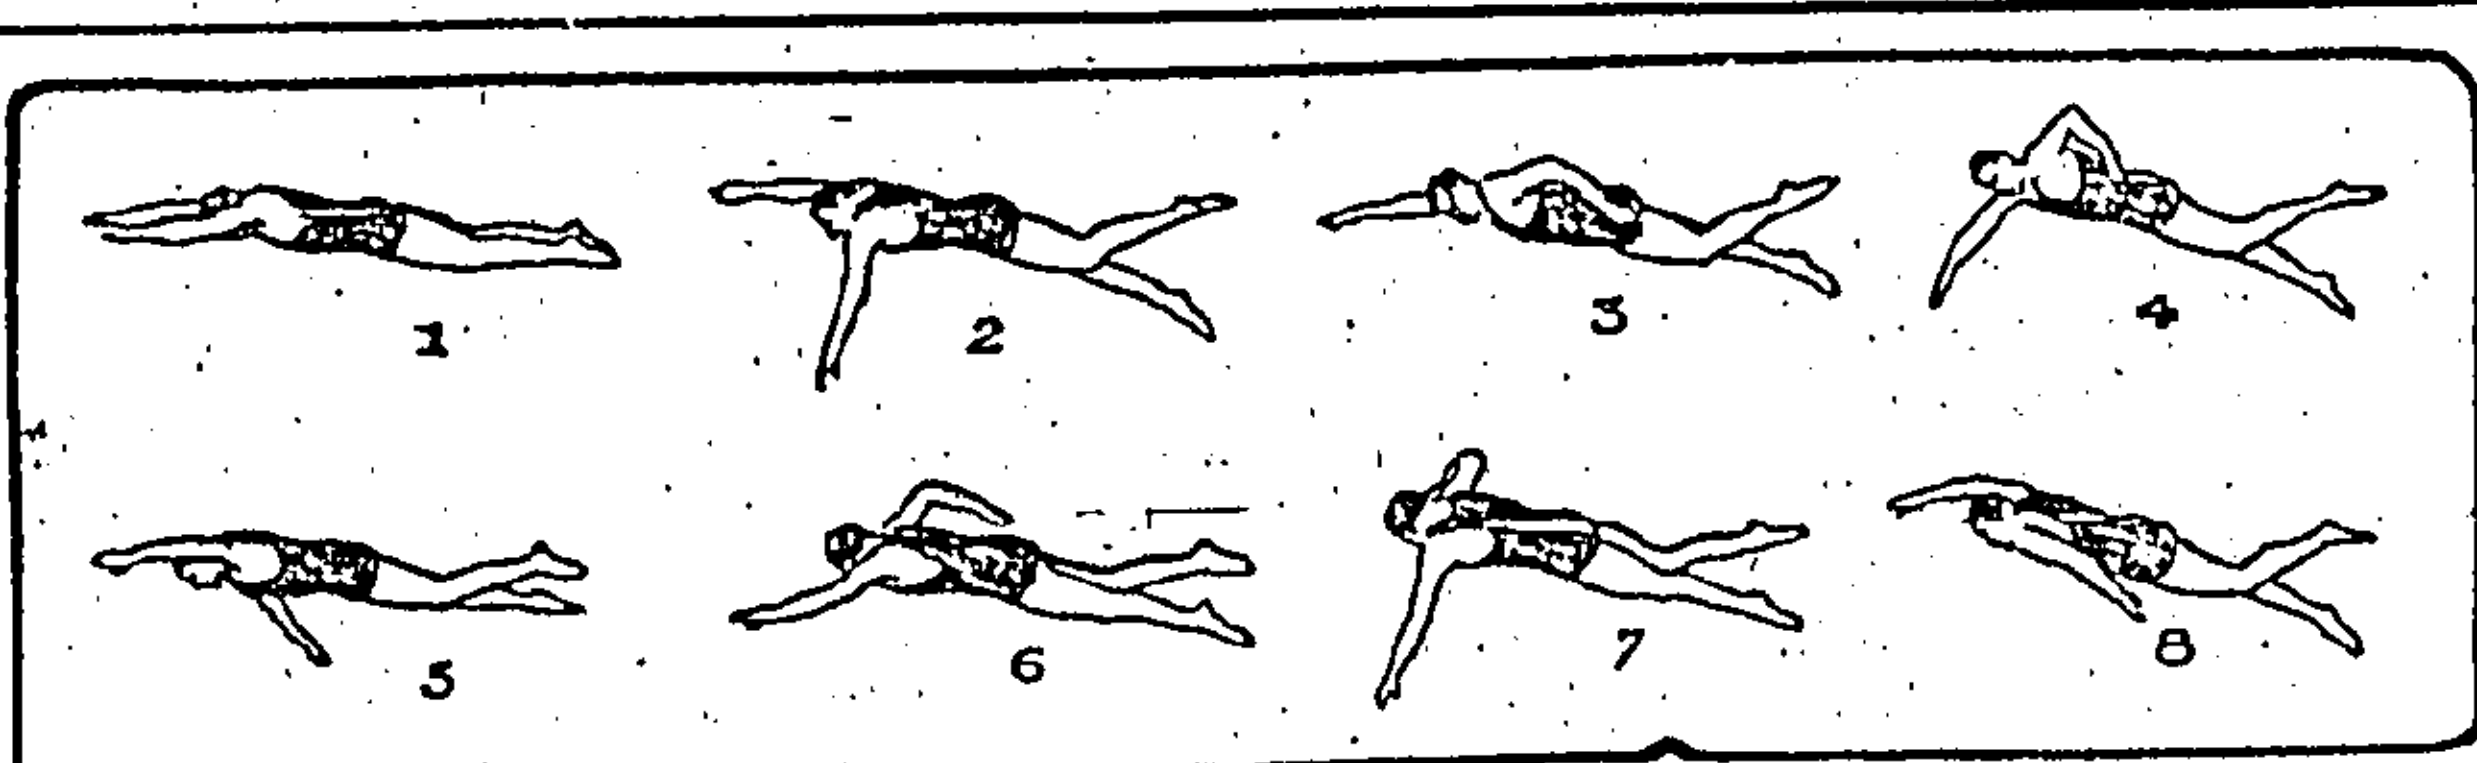

Dear Kiddies, Glad you all liked the Crossword Competition; I must try to give you another later on. As expected, most of you got the correct solution, although some gave "M P" for "P P" in the clue "Softly in music" which in turn made the solution for "a parent" read "Ma" instead of "Pa." Others did not get "Lac" (100,000 rupees) or "Tipton" (a game) correctly.

Taking age and neatness into account, I award the prize in the Senior Section to Margie Xavier (aged 10), 17 Jordan Road, whilst C. S. Coom (aged 8), 431 Wai On Chong Road, is the winner in the Junior Section.

Will the winners call at the Beatrice Greaves, "Telegraph" office, next week's issue for their Senior winner. Seniors who are specially commended for good work are Betty Goodwin, Emily Gill, Celeste Gutierrez, Marianne Hill, Kenneth de Roz, Fernando Alves, Gloria Gomes, David McCasland, Maurice Tod, Claudio Hollande, Jacqueline Anderson, Isabel Morrison, and Leslie Fox, whilst in the Junior Section excellent work was sent in by William Jidkoff.

Would You Swim the Streamlined Crawl?

"I T is the fastest way to swim and, when properly done, it is the easiest way to swim fast," said a well-known American coach when asked recently to describe the stroke, which was perfected by Johnny Tarzan, Weissmuller, Ethel Luckie, Albert H. Schwartz and others.

The statement has some of the earmarks of a conundrum, and the coach was asked to elaborate for the benefit of those who know a little bit about swimming, and might improve considerably with a picture of what a good stroke looks like.

"A motor-car engineer," said the coach, "has been quoted as saying streamlined cars are of little value until a speed of 30 miles an hour is achieved. Everybody knows an airplane, from which the streamlining of cars was derived, takes off from the earth only when it has built up high velocity. Likewise, the speedboat does not reach full effectiveness until it goes fast enough to lift its prow from the water."

So there is such a thing as a streamlined crawl stroke, comparable in his view, with the resistance-features of these modern vehicles; a stroke which, after a certain speed and position is achieved, becomes more efficient, due to a kind of take-off from limitations otherwise retarding progress.

This is what has been called the perfected American crawl stroke," the speaker said. "It is a speed stroke, developed by logic and experiment. Its advantages are high and the legs have a tendency to sink. The body right now is at a slight angle from the surface of the water."

"We will aim to preserve this angle, and to elevate the body as a whole, so it will be higher in the water and encounter even less resistance."

"Say we have here a plank floating on the water: 'Now we want to make it move, make it travel over the water, in the most efficient manner. By this we mean the most speed for the energy expended. This requires reduction of resistance to a minimum and mechanical efficiency.'"

"All right," said the coach to his pupil, "let's see the arm action without breathing, and without the use of the legs."

He pointed out the hands were lying on the water, extended forward, about 18 inches apart, each hand directly in line with the point of the shoulder. The left arm started down, the elbow bent, the hand came under the body, still lined up with the shoulder, but about 12 inches below the chest. The hand was pulling until it got back to the chest, then it was pushed through and lifted out of the water at the hip.

As the left arm started forward in recovery, the right arm began its under-water drive, duplicating the performance of the left arm. The body moved through the water.

Watching the swimmer, using arm action only, the observer sees a paddle-wheel riverboat. The arms continue in uninterrupted rotation, like a windmill with two blades, the hands at all times equidistant.

There are three things wrong with this picture," said the coach, pointing to the swimmer who was ploughing away, without using the legs, and without working a breathing rhythm into his stroke.

"First, the body is too low in the water. Second, the feet are dragging low in the water, the body is at too much of an angle against progress. Third, the swimmer is not breathing."

Stretched out again after a period of rest, the pupil at the coach's direction rotated the arms as before and at the same time thrashed the legs up and down gently, keeping them close together, the toes pointed, and holding the width of the thrashers to about 18 inches.

With the leg beat added, the body rose in the water, it was easier to clear the arms out of the water in recovery, and the speed improved markedly due to lessened resistance. The legs came up higher, flattening the angle at which the body faced progress.

Now the breathing is done in and out of water. The inhaled must be made above surface through the mouth, and the exhaled is under water through the nose. He instructed the pupil now to add breathing to the stroke. As the swimmer's left arm reached the end of its power stroke, the head was suddenly turned to the left, the mouth cleared, a wide-open gulp of air taken, and the face turned back into the water, where bubbles at once began issuing from the nose, continuing until the mouth was again turned clear for air.

"There, in elementary form," said the mentor, "you have the stroke. Many people can do it, without getting superior speed. Come back to me again in a day or so and then I'll give you some of the refinements which account for the record-breaking velocity."

Now gently pour the milk on to the egg, stirring well all the time. Return to the pan and stir over a low gas until it starts to thicken, then remove and add the gelatine. Remove lemon rind.

Celeste Gutierrez.—You had all the answers correct, but there were some other competitors whose work was rather neater. Your certainly came near to keep on trying.

Ann Maria Santa Clara (Macao).—So glad you liked the consolation prize. You did quite well this week, but hardly good enough to win again.

LIGHT DISHES

Fruit Fluffs.—For these take half a cupful of any fruit juice, some slices or fancy shaped fruits, 4oz. best gelatine, sugar to taste, and colouring if liked. Four fresh eggs whites will also be needed.

Put the fruit juice and gelatine in a basin and stand over very hot water until the gelatine has melted, or, if preferred, dissolve the gelatine in a little hot water and stir into the fruit juice. Beat the egg-whites with a little sugar till very stiff, then fold into the other mixture.

Well mix, then put into small glasses or grapefruit bowls half full, then putting a layer of fruit. Fill half an ounce gelatine in a very before serving.

Serve quite cold. For an extra special dish, pile on whipped cream before the final decoration.

TINNED pineapple with its juice lends itself well to this dish. Orange juice is good, too, but tangy slices are better for decoration. If bananas are liked, use orange or lemon juice to favour well, but don't use as much as half a cup for lemon. A good-sized teaspoon is better to use for measuring lemon.

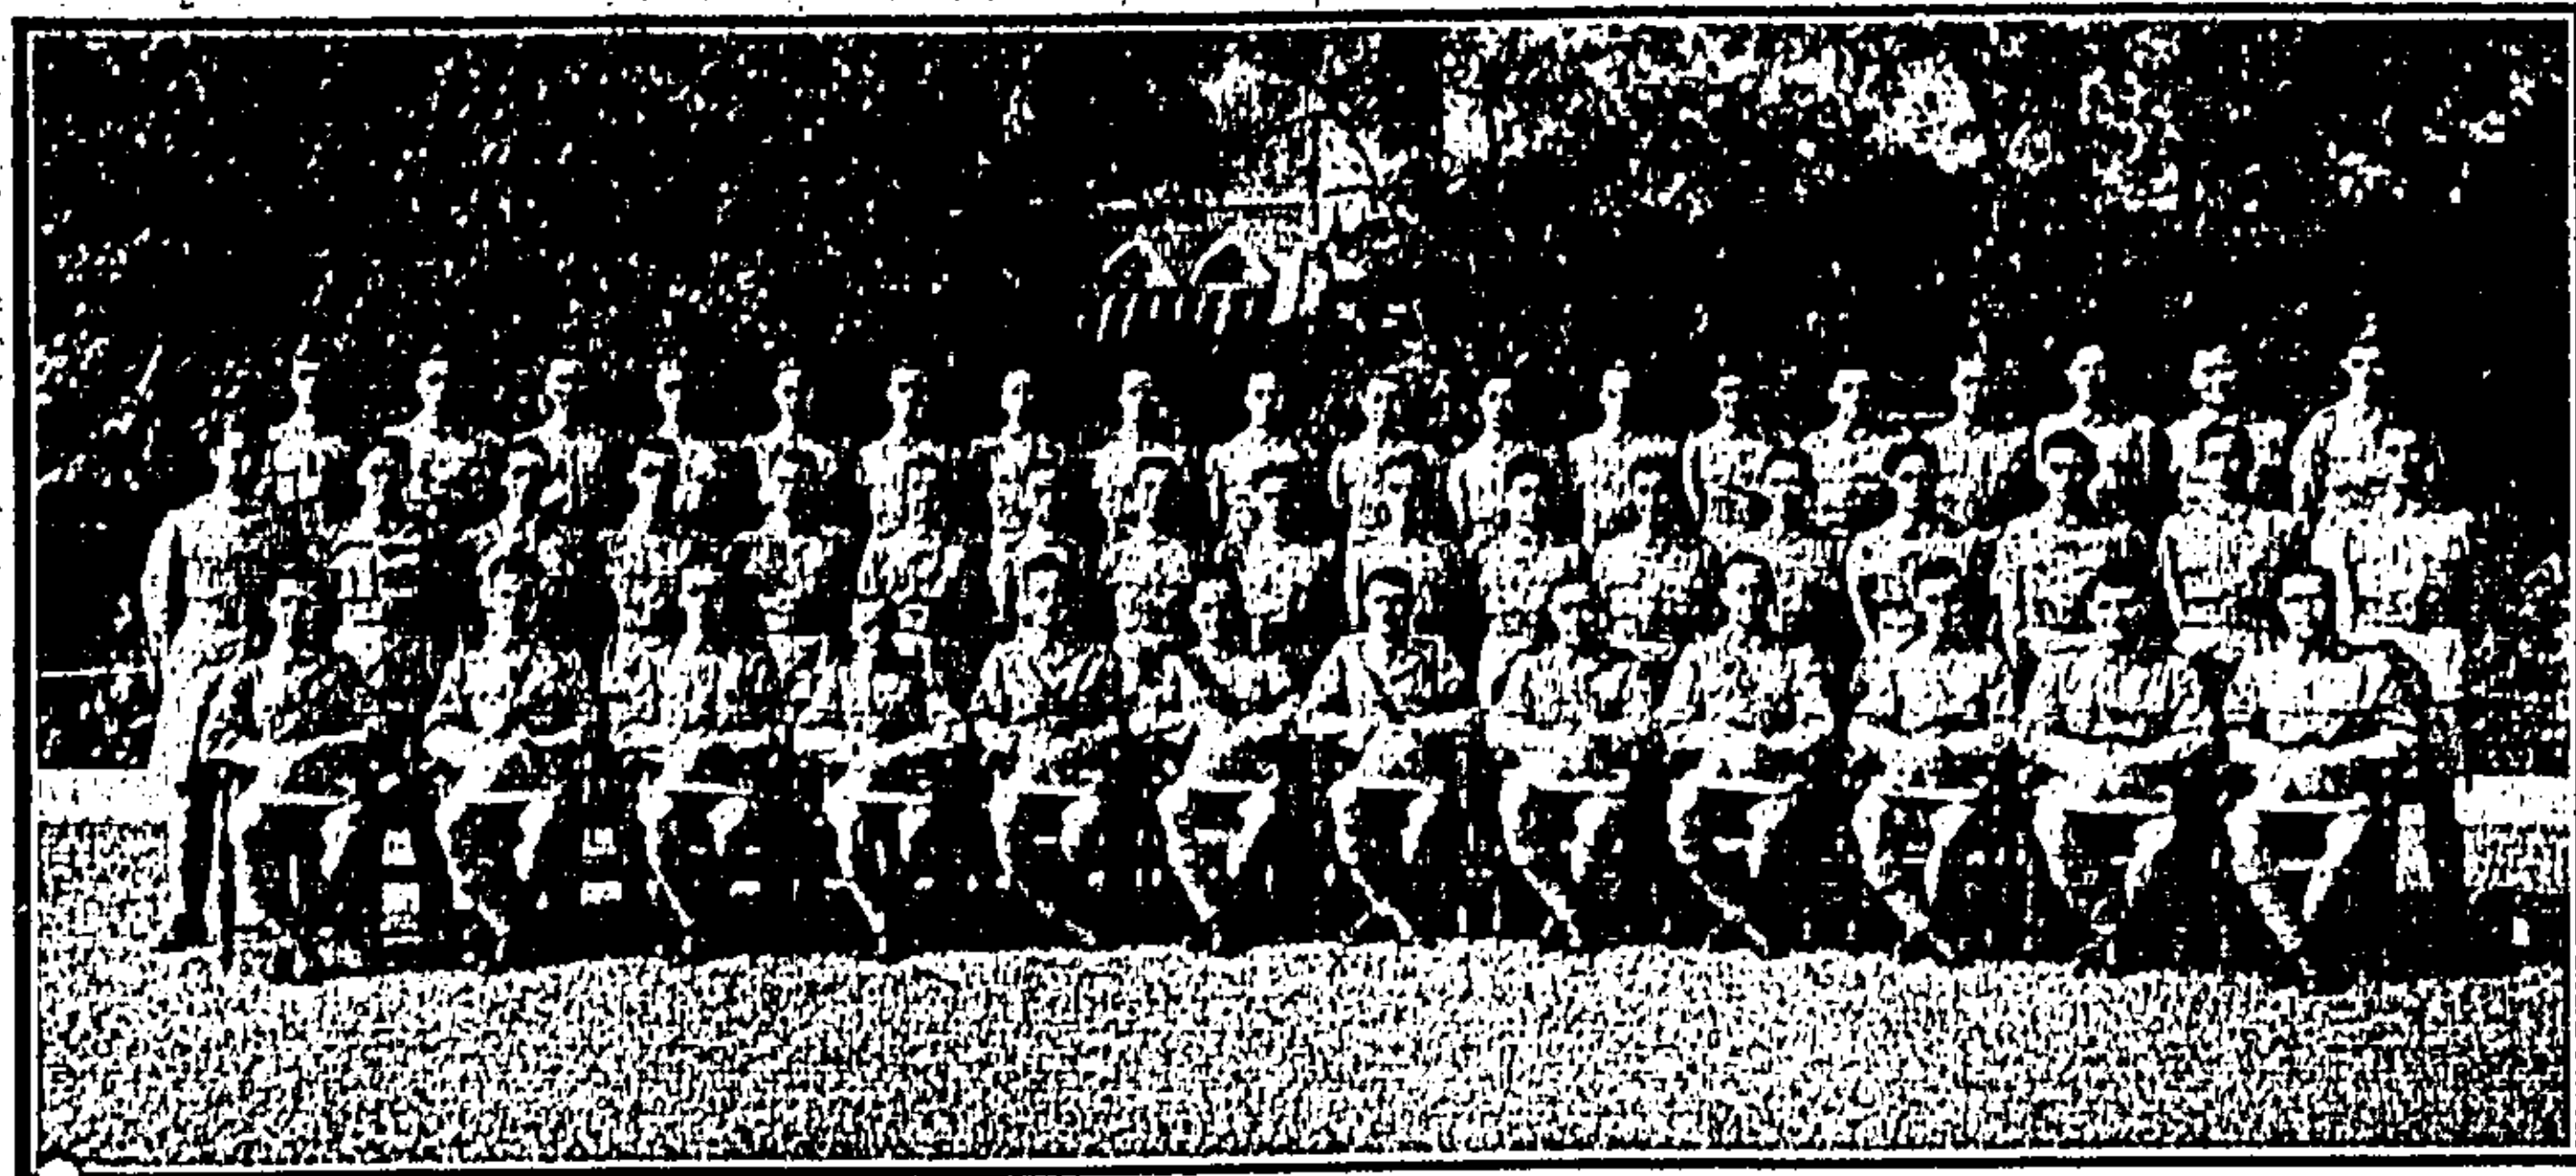

Using various fruits, and colouring differently, also using various coloured glasses, this makes a most tempting party sweet for children, and has the benefit of being quite digestible and wholesome.

Egg Yolk Moulds.—Use the four yolks left from previous recipe. Put three strips of this lemon peel into three-quarters of a pint, new milk and bring near to—but not quite—boiling point. Beat up the yolks with a little sugar. Dissolve into the mixture.

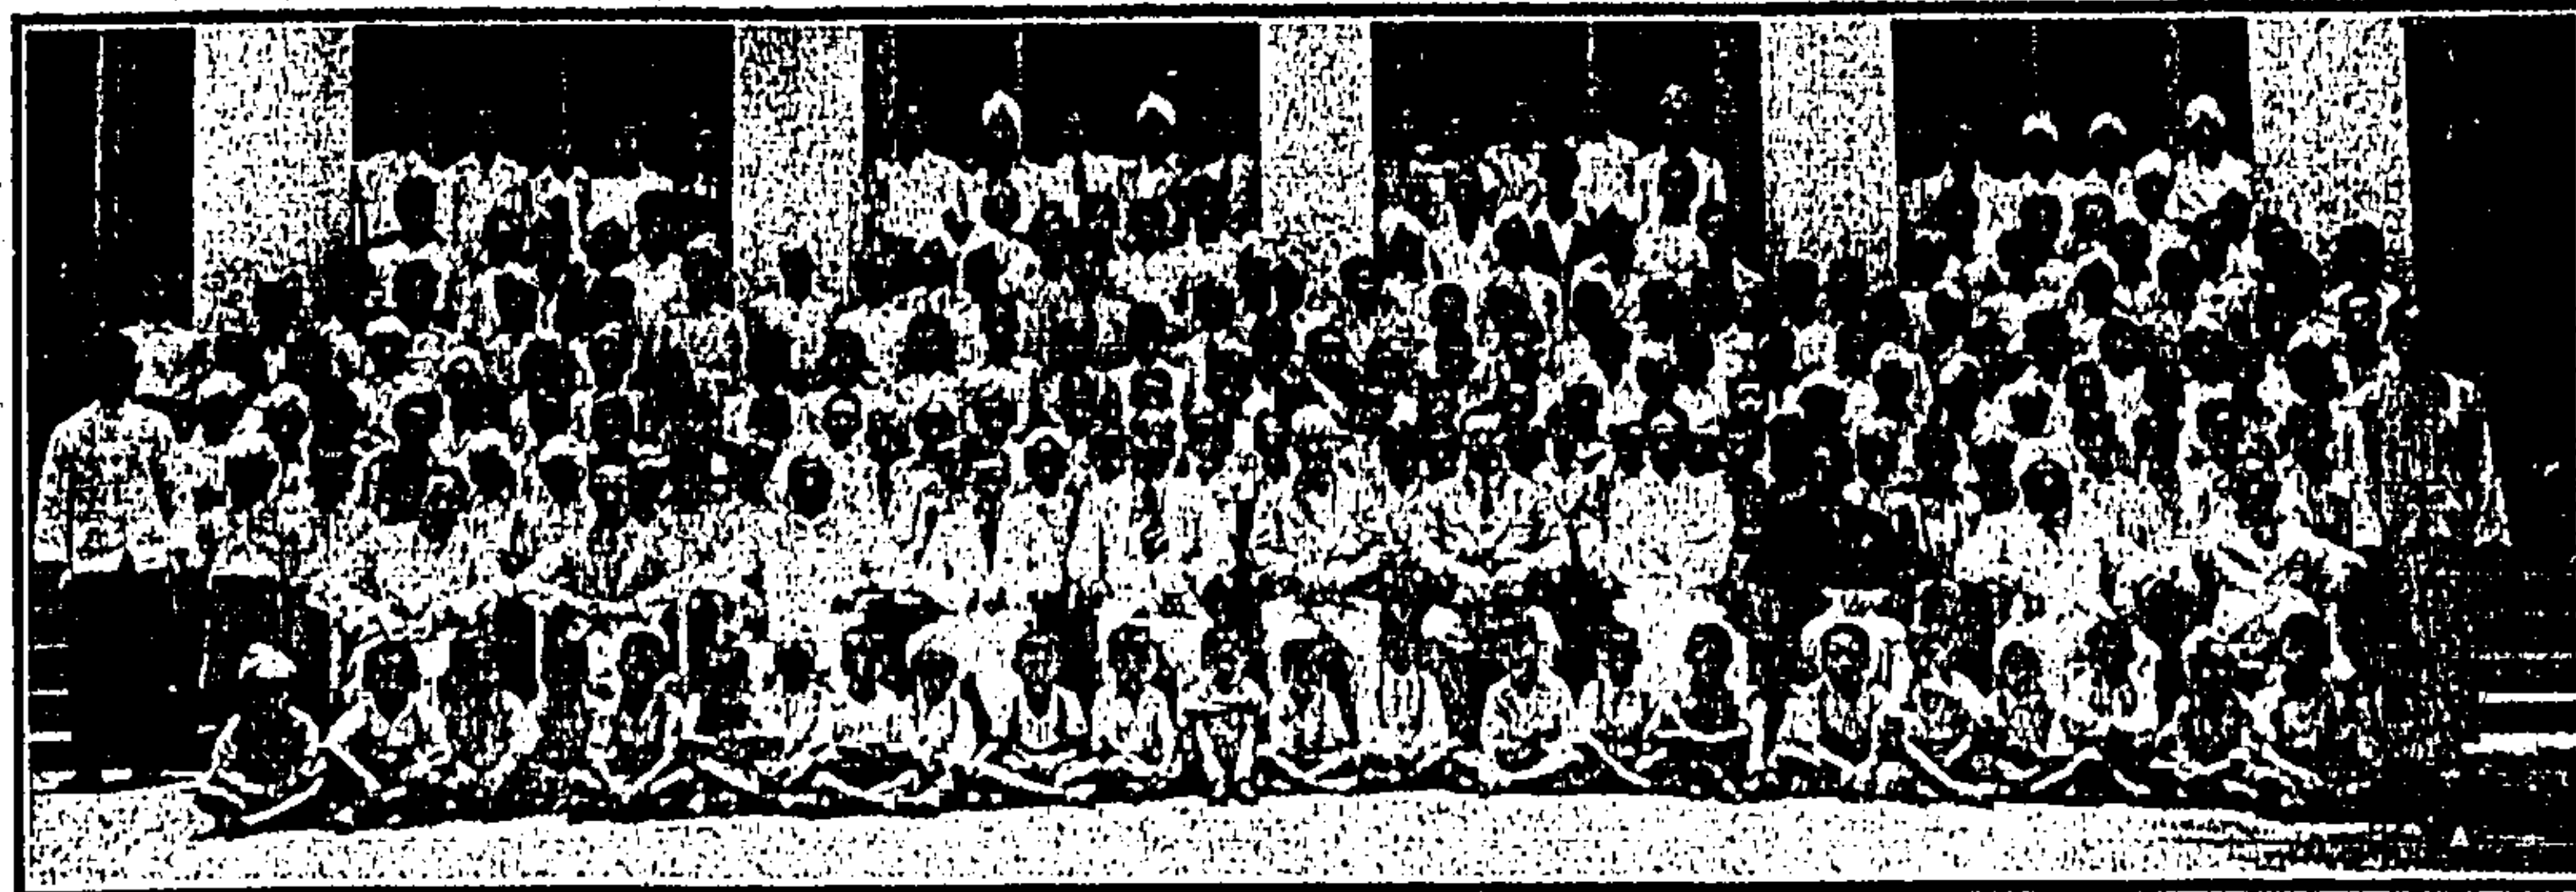

Now gently pour the milk on to the egg, stirring well all the time. Return to the pan and stir over a low gas until it starts to thicken, then remove and add the gelatine. Remove lemon rind.

When well mixed, pour into small fancy moulds and leave to set. Turn out and decorate with chopped fruit. This is a simple but pretty dish and a favourite.

"Smithy" Still Alive? "IN DISTRESS ON ISLAND IN GULF OF SIAM"

SAYING that both family and friends are convinced that Air-Commodore Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, the great Australian flier, who was lost near Singapore, is alive on an island in the Gulf of Siam or Bay of Bengal. "Smithy's" sister, Mrs. Winifred Seaby, of "Ladstock," Saratoga, New South Wales, has written to Far Eastern newspapers appealing for a further search.

Mrs. Seaby says that, although she and other relatives of Sir Charles have not been believers in spiritualism, they are constantly receiving psychic messages indicating that "Smithy" is alive and in great distress, "both in mind and body."

Mrs. Seaby wrote to Mr. Pat O'Hara, a well-known European resident of Java, who intended returning to Netherland India in a few days. As he was a friend of Sir Charles, Mrs. Seaby asked his help in organising a search.

Mr. O'Hara was killed in an air crash in Victoria the day the letter was posted.

IN view of the repeated psychic revelations that have reached the family and friends in Australia, Mrs. Seaby asks that extracts be published from her letter to the Sunday Times (Singapore) and from her letter to Mr. O'Hara, a copy of which she enclosed.

"While staying with my mother, Mrs. Kingsford-Smith, snr., in Sydney this week-end a strange thing happened," Mrs. Seaby writes. "The clairvoyant who has said, ever since my brother and his companion disappeared, that they were on an island called Salinda, telephoned my mother to say that Sir Charles was in urgent need of help."

"This clairvoyant is the same one that predicted that Sir Charles would never reach New Zealand when he set out on his last disastrous crossing of the Tasman Sea." (Sir Charles and Captain Taylor, in an effort to fly a Jubilee mail to New Zealand on May 13, 1935, were compelled to turn back when an engine failed in the Southern Cross. Nearing Sydney on the return the second engine failed and they limped home on one.)

DEAD FRIEND'S MESSAGE. Mrs. Seaby continues: "The clairvoyant is well known in Sydney as a wonderfully clever medium and her sincerity is beyond all question."

"To add to my disquiet a relative has got in touch with us from the country to say that she and her daughter were amusing themselves with a planchette (a spiritualistic instrument for writing) and a message was found written on the pad from 'Andy.'"

"Andy" was Keith Anderson, an Australian record flier, who lost his life while searching for his friends, "Smithy" and "Win" when they were lost in Northern Australia in 1929.

WHITE FLAG STORY. "Andy" beseeched us to help "Chilly" (Kingsford-Smith's nickname). He said that "Chilly" spent his time all day among the mangroves, despairingly looking for a white flag carried by a search party. (A white flag was seen hoisted over the mangroves during the search.)

KINGSFORD-SMITH
Still alive!

was thought at first that it was a distress signal from the lost aviators, Kingsford-Smith and Captain Pethybridge, but later it was proved to be a signal to Siamese fishermen.

"I remember a week after his disappearance, a friend who was staying with me said that she had a most vivid dream of my brother sitting on a yellowish, muddy beach with his chin cupped in his hands, gazing out to sea."

"I would like you to know that we are a very matter-of-fact family, not given to spiritualism or trying to dole in the Unseen. I have never attended a seance in my life. But I do feel that there is some unknown agency working for my brother's release."

FOREIGN OFFICE CABLE. In her letter to Mr. O'Hara, Mrs. Seaby recalls that the British Foreign Office had cabled to the Commonwealth defence authorities, asking that a message had been received from the Hague, to the effect that a Dutch medium had urged that immediate help be sent to Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, as he was in great distress and danger on a

By A "Telegraph"
Staff Reporter

WHEN Simmonds and I set off from the office for our afternoon stroll through the City I little knew what that simple constitutional was going to cost me. I had told Simmonds that I was out to save money... one dollar a day was all that I was prepared to spend.

"I have practically cut out drinking and gambling and go to bed early every night," I told him rather proudly.

Simmonds took off his glasses and wiped them while he remarked: "You'll have to cut out a lot more things than that if you don't want to spend money. You will further have to become a law-abiding citizen."

Now I have a great regard for Simmonds, but at times he rather nettles me with his preciseness and affection for exactness. I met my mind over several episodes of the past few days I decided that I was no law-abiding citizen as he.

I told Simmonds but he was not convinced. "Let's go," he remarked in the laconic style indicative of a thirsty throat.

On the way to the hotel he reverted to the theme of my lawlessness. "Do you realise that even now you are liable to a fine of $80 and that if it is imposed I shall get half of it?"

I took a hasty glance at myself in a large shop window. Everything seemed to be in order.

"Yes," continued Simmonds. "You still have eight duff ten cent pieces on you that you picked up in that bon-ton game last night, haven't you?"

"Yes," I replied, just beginning to understand.

"Well, according to Sec. 20 (1), Ordinance No. 7 of 1926, you are liable to a fine of $10 for the possession of such piece and half of that goes to the informer."

A policeman was passing at this moment but Simmonds fortunately was drawing a fresh breath before he continued.

"The action deals with people like you who 'without lawful authority or excuse' carry these counterfeit pieces around. You knew they were bad because I heard you kicking up a row at the end of the game," he said after a pause.

This was getting too much. "Look here, Simmonds," I said indignantly. "One of these fifty coins was yours and you tried to pass it off in the Number 6 bus yesterday. If I liked to be nasty about that I could get you a year's free board and lodging at Victoria Gaol."

"Section B," I added as an afterthought.

Simmonds was about to reply when he caught his foot on a large box conveniently laid across his path by a Chinese enjoying his siesta a few yards away. Simmonds' foot failed to disturb his slumber and Simmonds rejoined me muttering angrily under his breath.

"I could get that fellow fined $10 under Section 3 (3) Summary Offences Ordinance," he said, still hopping gingerly on one toe.

JAY-WALKING JOY. Somewhat relieved that I was not the immediate object of his venom this time, I said nothing and we crossed the street. To be on the safe side I stuck closely within the pedestrian crossings but a coolie jostling (Continued on Page 5) coral island not far from Benecoolen, Sumatra."

This medium attributed the messages to Captain Beckman, a Dutch pilot, who crashed and was killed in 1934, and who was a personal friend of Sir Charles.

Mrs. Seaby refers to other mediums who have declared that Sir Charles is alive, but in terrible distress.

"We all know how difficult it is to see a damaged plane from the air—even when the ground is only lightly timbered," Mrs. Seaby adds in her letter to Mr. O'Hara. "We also realise the intensive search both from ground and air undertaken by the R.A.F., Qantas and other authorities in the area in which Sir Charles and his companion were supposed to have been lost."

SHIPPING LOOK-OUT. "We therefore do not want to impose further on the generosity of any shipping in the Indian and China Seas and the Gulf of Siam should not be instructed to keep a sharp look-out for two stranded men on the islands and mainland over which they might have flown."

Quite recently two young Australians were rescued from an island in the Rho Archipelago, south of Singapore. They had been stranded there six weeks, although this is a busy ocean thoroughfare.

"It is quite fair to assume that the Lady Southern Cross would drift a long way in the monsoon winds, and if forced down into the sea, she may have been seen and the occupants rescued by native junk or praus who would take them to some island."

"Also, the Lady Southern Cross might have been forced down in the jungle of Sumatra, where no search party has yet been sent."

Give These Tourists Consideration

CHINESE

HONGKONG, through its Travel Association, is making a supreme effort to attract tourists to the Riviera of the Orient.

At the same time, points out a correspondent in the letter below, everything possible is done to drive away our biggest potential tourist trade—that from China itself.

Read this letter.

Sir—There are various opinions as to the future prosperity of Hongkong, and as an old resident who has seen good and bad times, I should like to make a few suggestions through your newspaper.

The Hongkong Travel Association has, I believe, been formed to encourage tourists to visit the Colony. All people well connected with it must point out, however, that I have failed to ascertain whether any endeavour is being made to attract Chinese visitors, and if so, will steps be taken to spare them the many indignities they now suffer?

For every American or European who passes through Hongkong, hundreds of Chinese come and go. Unfortunately, the treatment served out to these Chinese is not calculated to please them. I may say that I speak from the experience of hundreds of Chinese with whom I come into contact, as well as from personal experience.

I say deliberately that every Chinese arriving in Hongkong is subjected to a most annoying treatment in the method of searching and in the way he is at the mercy of the gangs of coolies who, infect the wharves. These coolies fight over his baggage, and insist upon exorbitant rates for carrying it.

A relative of mine recently sent some furniture to Hongkong, and asked me to receive it from the ship. I sent my servant with the necessary authority, as well as my own coolies. They were not permitted to touch the furniture, and it was necessary for me to seek police intervention before anything could be done. I suggest such a state of affairs is scarcely to be expected.

In the matter of searching, discretion and courtesy should be practised. Every Chinese is not a potential criminal. Hundreds shun Hongkong because of the state of affairs I am requesting you to expose.

It is significant especially in Chinese eyes, that foreigners are not subjected to such indignities. True, they too suffer from the gangs of baggage-snatching coolies, but they are not generally under continual and disturbing suspicion.

As the Travel Association is collecting subscriptions from Chinese, I would suggest that they produce a pamphlet in Chinese, also, could they not station uniformed inspectors in the vicinity of wharves in order to assist Chinese visitors, and stop the annoyance? Could they not secure a more respectful method of searching?

Encourage overseas Chinese to visit us. Remove the impression that they are not wanted, or that they are arriving for a nefarious purpose, and you will help in restoring prosperity to the Colony, which, after all, is the birthplace of many overseas Chinese. They are not all coming home with bad reputations.

I must apologise for the length of this letter, but I do assure you that I am confident that Chinese will enjoy themselves and spend money in Hongkong, and come by the hundreds, when it is known that they are wanted, and that common courtesy awaits them.

LOCAL BARRACKS SELECT COMMITTEE VIEW OF ESTIMATES

London, July 3. Variations in the estimates of the cost for erection of Hongkong barracks to accommodate three battalions is referred to in a report of the Select Committee on Estimates. The 1934 estimate of £1,700,000 and the 1935 estimate of £2,200,000, is now £1,100,000.

It was stated that the most recent figure is "still a rough estimate" and twice the average cost of providing accommodation for the same number of battalions in Britain. It included £250,000 for special work.

The Committee state that while earlier estimates are based on a different site, variations in provisional figures appear far wider than defensible.—Reuter.

BIOLOGIST'S WARNING

EFFECT ON EUROPE'S FUTURE

ALARM IN ROME

IS Abyssinia to degenerate into an Italian chocolate Empire?

A warning by Professor J. B. S. Haldane on the biological consequences of the Italian conquest appears simultaneously with a cry of alarm to the same effect, in the Rome newspapers.

Professor Haldane writing in the Times recently, says:

CLOSE UNION

"The Duce proposes to settle a quarter of a million Italian families in that country. They are to settle as peasants."

"It can be predicted that they will interbreed with the Ethiopians. This is inevitable when European settlers are on an economic level not much above that of the natives."

"It is also inevitable if the Italian Government attempts to live up to the Roman policy, embodied in Claudian's line, Huic est in premium victor quae sola recepta. ('She alone takes the conquered to her bosom.')

"KEEP THEM SEPARATE"

In Rome the Messaggero recently declared that Italian colonists and Abyssinian natives should be kept separate and furthermore (writes the New Chronicle correspondent) only married Italian men be sent to Ethiopia with their wives to colonize the new empire.

It also deplores the requests that have been sent to the Colonial Ministry from Italian childless couples who want to adopt Abyssinian children, and says that the example set by the few Italians who lived in Abyssinia before the war, who had mated with native women and bred a half-caste race of children, must on no account be encouraged.

Following this warning the picture postcards of Abyssinian women which have been prominently displayed in Roman shop windows have mysteriously disappeared.

Attempts are made to ban the popular Abyssinian song, "Little Black Face."

The maximum is death. The 119 are leading members of a huge Nazi organisation active all over Polish Silesia. Its members are under secret military training in preparation for the day "when Polish Silesia shall be handed back to Germany."

Sections are declared to have been trained for the tasks of cutting telephone wires, sabotaging factories and uprooting railway lines.

NAZIS ACCUSED OF TREASON

KATOWICE (Silesia), June, 20.

SENSATIONAL disclosures of a widespread Nazi conspiracy in Poland are promised in the trial which opened here to-day of 119 Germans on charges of high treason.

Five hundred witnesses are to be called and the trial is expected to last for a month at least.

A fully armed force has been drafted into the city to preserve order and hundreds of police surrounded the court to-day. Fifty Nazis suspected of planning a desperate attempt to kidnap some of the chief accused before trial have been arrested and imprisoned.

The German Government exerted every diplomatic effort to stop the trial, but the Polish Government insisted on bringing the Nazis to justice.

They are accused of plotting to separate Polish Upper Silesia from Poland by military revolution and to incorporate it in the Reich.

The least punishment that can be imposed is five years' penal servitude.

Remove FILM this way

The fate of your teeth may rest on what you do to remove film! Don't risk ineffective methods when film may lead to such serious consequences. And don't trust precious tooth enamel to any but a special film-removing dentifrice.

21 years ago a group of men discovered a scientific fact—that film should be removed. If teeth are to be kept clean and sound, if gums are to remain healthy. A special formula was devised. Since then it has been constantly improved with one thought in mind: to remove film safely.

Today, Pepsodent is known as the "special film-removing tooth paste." It is unexcelled in the way it removes the film that glues decay germs to teeth. Millions know how it polishes teeth to natural brilliance. And it does these things safely. For Pepsodent contains no gritty nothing that might harm or injure tooth enamel.

DIVORCE COURT PERJURY

Primate on "Scandal of the Hotel Bill"

INNOCENT MAN SHOULD NOT TAKE ALL THE BLAME

PERJURY and methods of collusion in seeking divorce were denounced by Churchmen recently when the Upper House of the Convocation of Canterbury continued its debate on the Church's attitude to divorced people. "It is urgently desirable," declared a resolution, which was adopted, "that steps be taken to strengthen the safeguards against the methods of collusion and perjury at present not uncommonly employed in seeking divorce."

"These scandalous and distressing collusions," said the Primate, "prevent one of those strange cases in which the powers of evil seem to outwit and defeat the best intentions of beneficent legislation."

Results of the abolition of the distinction between the sexes regarding standards of morality were, he said, that "it became possible for a wife to obtain a divorce for a mere single act of adultery."

"FURTHER GROUNDS" REMEDY
The result was "all this scandalous abuse of going to an hotel and producing the hotel bill."

One of the claims put forward by the more reasonable of those seeking return of the divorce law was that, so long as adultery remained the only statutory ground of divorce, it was impossible to see how these abuses could be restrained.

They might be restrained, however, if further grounds of divorce were permitted.

"PERVERTED CHIVALRY"

The Bishop of Winchester (Dr. Garbett) proposed the appointment of a committee of the House to report on conditions under which divorced persons who contract a legal marriage during the lifetime of a former partner may be admitted to Baptism or Holy Communion.

"It is said," he observed, "that you cannot to-day distinguish between the innocent and the guilty. In certain small circles with a perverted chivalry it is sometimes expected that the man, even though innocent, should take all the blame."

"I find it difficult to know which to condemn more strongly—the weakness of the man who adopts such a course, or the meanness of the woman who expects him to adopt it."

If innocent people married again and lived good Christian lives, he thought it impossible, with justice and charity, to refuse them the help of Holy Communion.

"But when I have been asked to allow the guilty party remained to come to Holy Communion," he added, "I have replied, 'I have no power to do this.'"

"That line may have been too rigid, and I am not prepared now to say that in every kind of case we must exclude from Communion those who, though guilty, have married again."

The Bishop's proposal was agreed to.

On the question of the amendment of the State law relating to divorce, the Bishop of Chichester moved a resolution declaring the House to be of opinion "that some amendment of the law may be demanded by the circumstances of the day." The resolution was carried.

"After circling the world nine times, having seen plenty of foreign nations, gathered no moss, I decided it was time to settle down and begin making a living," he said.—United Press.

Geneva, June 20.

A dramatic proposal to form a fleet of peace propaganda airplanes has been put forward by the International Council.

It has occurred to some of the members of the council that peace was as well worth advertising as any other commodity. And the airplane has been pressed into publicity service. Pilots write the names of commercial brands in letters of smoke on the sky. They tow banners on which city gazers may read trade devices. Why not propagandize for peace likewise?

Permission would have to be accorded by the national authorities since there are stringent air regulations.

WHY DO NINE HOUSEWIVES OUT OF TEN REFER TO THE FAMILY REFRIGERATOR, WHATEVER MAY BE ITS MAKE, AS

"THE FRIGIDAIRE"

BECAUSE

"THE FRIGIDAIRE" IS SO WELL KNOWN, SO RELIABLE AND SO VERY MUCH THE ARISTOCRAT OF ITS KIND. THAT IT IS

THE ONE

OF ALL THE MAKES WHICH THE HOUSEWIFE WOULD LIKE TO OWN.

IN THE OLD DAYS A FRIGIDAIRE MAY PERHAPS HAVE BEEN REGARDED AS A LUXURY FEW COULD AFFORD, BUT TO-DAY ITS MODERATE PRICE AND EFFICIENT SERVICE MAKES IT A REAL ECONOMY THAT NO ONE CAN AFFORD TO DO WITHOUT.

Japanese Crew Loses At Henley

LEANDER WILL MEET ZURICH

Henley, July 3. In the Grand Challenge Cup semi-final Zurich beat Tokyo by six lengths. Time, 7 mins. 9 secs. In the other semi-final Leander R.C. beat Boston by a length, the time being 7 mins. 17 secs. In vivid contrast with Thursday the weather was ideal to-day for rowing with a slight head-wind, but the water was still. There was no sun. Making an excellent start the Japanese crew pulled a faster stroke, but Zurich secured a lead of three quarters of a length in the first 200 yards. The Japanese crew were stroking forty to the minute, but were still three quarters of a length behind. Zurich passed Fawley in 3 mins. 24 secs., rowing beautifully and two lengths ahead. At the three quarters of a mile the Japanese crew made frantic efforts but became ragged as the stroke set a rate of forty-eight. Zurich pulled home easily amid great applause.—Reuter.

HIGH STANDARD ROWING

Henley, July 3. The weather continued dull, with an occasional head wind, but the rowing was of a high standard. One of the biggest crowds on record was disappointed at the Japanese failure following their remarkable accomplishment, but Zurich is regarded as one of the best crews ever seen at the regatta, and they easily won their way to the final, when they meet Leander R.C. and the race should be most exciting. Leander rowed beautifully against Boston, and had the race in their pockets after the first half mile. Three American crews were in the semi-finals for the Thames Cup. Tabor beat Quent in easily, the time being 7 mins. 45 secs. Browne, Nichols beat St. Catherine's by one and a quarter lengths, time being 7 mins. 47 secs. Kent school beat Imperial College by three quarters of a length, time 7 mins. 38 secs. Rudolf (Switzerland) the holder and the favourite for the Diamond Sculls, easily beat Warren in the semi-finals, and is expected to retain the title. His time was 9 mins. 25 secs. Tyler beat Winstone easily, time being 9 mins. 32 secs. Two Cambridge crews, Clare I and Trinity meet in the final of the Ladies Plate.—Reuter.

Charles E. Hare, 21 year-old English player, who, with F.H.D. Wilde, yesterday reached the final of the men's doubles championship.

LOCARNO
POWERS TO MEETFRANCO-BRITISH DECISIONPARLEY AT EARLY DATE

Geneva, July 3.

Mr. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, gave a dinner to-night to
M. Yves Delbos, French Foreign Minister, and M. Paul Van Zeeland, Belgian Premier, after which a communique was issued stating the result of the conversations.

This revealed that it was agreed that a further meeting of the Locarno Powers represented at the March meeting in London is desirable, in order to discuss the present situation, at an early date.

It is understood that recent talks between the three Powers revealed a closer approximation of views than had previously been reached.

SUICIDE
CHAMBERMAN SHOTS SELF
AS PROTEST

Geneva, July 3.

Stephen Lux, a Czech-Slovakian press photographer, died of a self-inflicted bullet wound at 9 o'clock tonight, declaring he had killed himself as a protest against the treatment the Jews were receiving in Germany. He killed himself to draw attention to their sufferings.

He left a note addressed to King Edward and others addressed to Mr.
Anthony Eden, M. Joseph Avenol and M. Albert Lebrun. They have not been opened.

The man shot himself while standing in the League of Nations Assembly chamber's gallery. Reuter.

Coronation Committee
AppointedDUKE OF YORK AT HEAD OF PANEL

London, July 3.

The Privy Council has nominated a panel of forty-two eminent personages as a committee to make the necessary arrangements for the Coronation on May 12 next year, under the King's direction.

The panel is headed by the Duke of York and includes the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, the Prime Minister, representative Peers, principal members of the Cabinet, and leading members of the three political parties.

It is understood that the Committee will deal with the United Kingdom aspects of the preparations, while the question of arrangements for the participation of the Dominions with the United Kingdom, in the work of preparing for the Coronation on aspects of general concern, is still under discussion between the various Governments. Reuter Special.

Warships in harbour were dressed overall this morning in honour of American Independence Day. A reception is being held by the Consul-General and the American community at the American Club to mark the day.

Tenders are being invited for asphaltic roofing to two blocks of flats at Queen Mary Hospital. The work of asphaltic roofing material to two blocks of flats and six garages.

DIOCESAN BOYS' SCHOOLREDUCTION IN CLASS FEES

One of the happiest events of its kind was the Speech Day and Prize Giving of the Diocesan Boys' School held yesterday and attended by some hundreds of pupils and guests.

His Excellency the Governor Sir Andrew Caldecott, captivated the youngsters with a speech which kept them in roars of laughter but yet held an undertone of seriousness which made them aware of the importance of their school life.

Both His Excellency and Lady
Caldecott received a great ovation.
Lady Caldecott who presented the prizes, received a handsome bouquet from the hands of Master A. S.
Bertram, and His Excellency was given a hearty cheer at the conclusion of the ceremony.

In his report for the year the Rev.
L. L. Nash, Acting Headmaster, spoke of the reduced fees in four classes which would enable more parents to send their boys to the school.

Governor's Speech

His Excellency said: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Headmaster, Ladies and Gentlemen, Hongkong is a terrible place for speechification. I hardly dare look at a petrol pump by the roadside for fear that it might ask me to say a few words in passing.
I still retain all the schoolboy's horror of hot air, and I therefore ask you to try and forgive your acting Headmaster for turning on the gubernatorial gas-tap this afternoon. (Laughter.) Anyhow the escape shall be brief, for I will confine myself to a duty that is too often omitted from prize-giving ceremonies.
I wish cordially to congratulate all those boys who have not won prizes or Sports' trophies. I am aware that prizes have become so multiplied that failure to obtain either one or the other is an even greater distinction than it used to be when I was at school. (Laughter.) And yet I suppose that the recipients this afternoon will still form a minority, and that my congratulations to them will be the majority. I am not at all to felicitate or unpersecuting in their work or play. If there are any such present I ask them now to stand up in their seats in order that we may have a contemptuous look at them.
(Pause and Laughter.) As I expected, there are none in this school.
So that I am now addressing those who through no fault or slackness of their own have failed to secure a place on the prize list.

"Average" Importance
Now it is you boys who have worked and played hard without any tangible reward that represent the "average" boy, and when you leave school and go out into the world you will become "the average man." It is the average boy who sets the tone and standard of his school, and it is the average man who sets the tone and standard of the community. We can't all be prize winners and there is no worth in a prize if the average boy or man does not maintain a high level for the prize-winner to excel.
In other words it is the fellows who don't get the prizes who make the prizes worth getting. And that is why it is right that at a ceremony like this we should duly remember and thank them. That, ladies and gentlemen, is all that I have to say except to thank you very sincerely for the warm welcome extended to my wife and myself this afternoon.

I can assure you that when the weather is more comfortable we shall be happy to pay another visit to your school. (Applause.)

TRIAL IN PEIPING

BRITISH SOLDIERS TO FACE
NEW CHARGE

Peiping, July 3.

The magistrate hearing the case respecting the death from a fractured skull of Kikaku Sasaki, a Japanese officer of the Manchukuo Department of Defence, to-day found there was insufficient evidence against either of two British soldiers, H. Cooke and R.
Hunt, suspected of having been implicated in the fight which caused his death.

However, he found there was a prima facie case against Cooke in the case of the assault on another Japanese, Onishi, and decided to deal with the charge summarily.

Later.
Formally charged with assault and causing bodily harm to Mr. Onishi, Herbert Cooke pleaded not guilty. His defence has been opened. Reuter.

Defence Opened

Peiping, July 3.

Council for Cooke said the defence would rely on an alibi. He admitted that Cooke visited the establishment but would prove that he left before the time of the alleged assault on Onishi. Moreover the bulk of the prosecution evidence linked Cooke with Hunt together, but actually Hunt never left barracks on the night of May 28. Cooke patrolled the town as a military policeman in company with soldiers named Heald and Kent. Counsel added that he

Evidence Insufficient

Peiping, June 3.

A Japanese Embassy spokesman stated this afternoon that though the British Court had decided not to proceed against Hunt and Cooke in connection with the death of Sasaki because of insufficient evidence, there was no doubt that Sasaki's death was caused by certain British soldiers and the Embassy has asked for instructions from Tokyo. Reuter.
